Federals Scour Swamps for Missing Civil Rights Workers; Foul Play Feared

CLUE TO MISSING WORKERS—Investigators looked up this charred station wagon of a missing civil rights trio in Philadelphia, Miss., after it was found Tuesday in a swampy area. Two white and a Negro civil rights worker have been missing since Sunday night. They were last seen as they drove this vehicle from Philadelphia, Miss. PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Allen W. Dulles, former chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, flies to Mississippi today on a White House mission to look into the mysterious disappearance of three young civil rights workers.

The charred hulk of the station wagon used by the trio was found by FBI agents late Tuesday at the edge of a swamp off a lonely road northeast of this central Mississippi town.

Philadelphia is the seat of justice for Neshoba County, called "Bloody Neshoba" by Mississippians for its past history of settling feuds by gunfire.

The FBI clamped a lid on most of its investigation.

A Mississippi highway patrolman told a newsman: "The FBI has taken over entirely."

Highway patrol units conducted a house-to-house search late

Two Civil Rights Volunteers Are Arrested

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A spokesman for a civil rights organization said early today two civil rights volunteer workers had been arrested at Moss Point in southern Mississippi.

The spokesman, Bob Byers of the Council of Federated Organizations, said sheriff's deputies at Moss Point refused to give the charges over the telephone.

The Jackson County sheriff's office and city police at Moss Point and nearby Pascagoula said they had no knowledge of any arrests.

Byers said the pair, identified as Ronald Ridenour, 24, of Venice, Calif., and Howard Kirchenbaum, of Long Beach, L.I., N.Y., had been arrested by sheriff's deputies.

Byers, whose organization coordinates activities of all major civil rights groups in the state, said three attorneys were en route to Moss Point to represent the pair.

Ridenour and Kirchenbaum were among some 175 summer volunteers, mostly collegians, who arrived in the state over the weekend to work in civil rights projects.

Byers also said that a meeting hall for civil rights groups had been burned Tuesday night at Moss Point. A fire department dispatcher said the only reported blaze in that general vicinity was a small brush fire.

Sukarno Warns Borneo War May Be Expanded

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno said today Indonesia will get outside help for its campaign to crush Malaysia. He threatened the use of "combined forces" against the British-defended federation.

Indonesia's campaign against Malaysia is being opposed by combined forces, Sukarno said with Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan beside him, and "obviously we will face them also with combined forces."

Sukarno, speaking at the dedication of a monument given Indonesia by the Soviet Union, said the Indonesian revolution is "now entering a new stage in crushing Malaysia."

"In this respect we are also combining anti-imperialist forces. We are not standing alone," he declared.

Mikoyan said that the Soviet Union always is on the side of the Indonesian nation in its struggle against colonialism.

It was Sukarno's first public statement since the summit talks on the Malaysian dispute collapsed in Tokyo last weekend.

Malaysia's Borneo territories are being defended against Indonesian guerrillas by 2,000 British troops and 5,000 Nepalese Gurkhas hired by the British, along with 5,000 Malaysian troops. Australia and New Zealand, both Commonwealth partners of Malaysia and Britain, have assured the federation of military support if needed.

Vast quantities of military equipment have been supplied Indonesia by the Soviet Union. More shipments of Soviet military hardware are expected later this year.

Mikoyan, heading a parliamentary delegation visiting Indonesia, talked most of Tuesday with Sukarno. An announcement said only that they

Arms Stolen From Armory In Mississippi

COLLINS, Miss. (AP) — Law authorities have been alerted to the theft of 41 rifles and 1,000 rounds of ammunition from a National Guard armory here.

The armory, in Covington County in the southeast portion of Mississippi, was broken into late Saturday. Guardsmen reported the theft to the sheriff's office.

Federal agents were also informed since the theft involved federal property.

O'Rourke Urges Amendment of U.S. Sugar Act

NEW YORK — (Special)—Assuring the United States a full sugar bowl at all times demands that the national Sugar Act be amended to provide a substantial increase in the domestic beet sugar industry's annual marketing quota, the head of one of the nation's major sugar companies declared here today.

Lodge Declares He Has No Hidden Political Plans

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Cabot Lodge's return from South Viet Nam might offer Republicans a choice of candidates to oppose Sen. Barry Goldwater for the GOP presidential nomination.

Lodge announced in Saigon Tuesday he was quitting his ambassadorial post and coming home because he felt it was his "duty to do everything that I can to help Gov. Scranton to win for president."

Later, he said "there are no hidden meanings" in his decision to return to the United States and he is "not a candidate at all." He added, "I am not going back at all in order to connive at anything for myself. I cannot be drafted."

Lodge's decision to jump into presidential politics was widely heralded by the backers of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton as a major development in his efforts to win delegates away from Goldwater.

Scranton said he was delighted by Lodge's decision to return and added, "This is another big boost for this rapidly expanding campaign." He said he hoped to have Lodge "go around and tell the people why they should be for me."

Plan to Forbid Garbage Truck Stops Is Defeated

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

The lawyers, armed with good, sound logic, spoke of economics, efficiency and a job to be done.

But it took a woman's impassioned plea to block adoption of an amendment to the city's garbage ordinance which would have prohibited any stops by garbage trucks in Colorado Springs other than to collect garbage and trash.

No one seemed to have anything more to say after Susie Perkins told council to "consider your brother."

The amendment to the ordinance was up for second reading. Approval by City Council Tuesday would have meant adoption. Councilmen said the amendment was the result of complaints from one section of the city that the garbage trucks were parked too long in the area.

The amendment would have required the trucks to drive to an industrially zoned site before they could stop to make a phone call, eat lunch or take a coffee break.

"We are now overburdened, overtaxed and overworked," Mrs. Perkins told council. She operates one of the trash hauling firms. "These men work hard for their money and I know there isn't one of them that wouldn't just park his truck and leave it if he could find a better paying job."

She said that the new law would completely disrupt the tash collection service in town, forcing the independent haulers to raise prices to meet the demands of the new law.

"We don't need this law. Our expenses are high now. We have to pay high for our licenses. We can't pay any more. We're paysick now," Mrs. Perkins said.

She told councilmen that the new law would even prevent a man from stopping at his home if his wife or child were suddenly taken ill.

"What about a man whose children are suddenly taken sick. Does he have to go all

U.S. 'Holds' Cotton Prices For Nasser, Sudan, Peru

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON —(Special) — There is apparently no limit to State Department kow-towing to President Gamal Nasser.

Latest instance of this constant truckling to the war-blustering Egyptian dictator is the department's strenuous balking at the sale on the world market of thousands of bales of government - owned surplus extra long staple cotton — which would net the Treasury a profit of around $25 million, and save taxpayers many more millions in storage charges.

Sole reason for this extraordinary State Department obstructionism is to keep this U.S. cotton "out of the export market so that prices will remain at high levels." — for the benefit of Nasser, as well as Peru and Sudan, the other two principal exporters of this type of cotton.

That's the flat charge of Representative Thomas Morris, D-N.M., who is spearheading a militant drive against the State Department's policy.

"The department's opposition is consistent with its past practices of being willing to sacrifice American interests for the sake of foreign countries," asserted Morris. "In this instance its opposition is particularly difficult to justify as the United Arab Republic is certainly not among this country's best friends, although it is a big beneficiary of our foreign aid.

"Without the tens of millions of dollars of surplus grain we have 'sold' the U.A.R. in recent years, for its own currency which stays there and we can't use, there would be real famine

Hidden Federal Taxes More Than Income Tax

A non-profit research organization, Tax Foundation, Inc., reports that federal taxes, indirect and hidden, involve a burden for the average American family of about 120 per cent of the personal income tax.

In a new edition of its handbook, Federal Fiscal Issues, the foundation states that while the average family with a $7,500 income in 1963 paid income taxes of $800, the burden of other federal taxes added about $960. This includes social security taxes.

The total federal tax load per average family thus become $1,760, the foundation figures. The 1964 Revenue Act cut about $150, on a one-year basis, from this estimate, according to the foundation.

The publication apportions the 1963 average family federal tax burden on a federal functional basis as follows:

National defense, 46 per cent or $810; interest, 6 per cent or $106; space reasearch and technology, 2 per cent or $35; veterans, 5 per cent or $88; agriculture, 6 per cent or $106; health, labor and welfare, excluding old-age, disability, etc., 9 per cent or $158; education, 1 per cent or $18; commerce and housing, 5 per cent or $88; international affairs, 2 per cent or $35; natural resources, 2 per cent or $35; general government, 2 per cent or $35; social insurance, including old - age, survivors insurance, etc., 14 per cent or $246.

The book notes there is clearly room for "greater public understanding of the major economic and fiscal issues facing the country."

The edition poses and answers such questions as What are the federal fiscal issues? What are the principal questions involved in making decisions and taking action on them? What tests can be used to evaluate fiscal action on them?

Federal Fiscal Issues noted that over the period 1955-65, federal government trust fund spending tripled "while non-defense spending doubled and defense spending increased about one-third."

Tax Foundation, Inc., is a non-profit organization engaged in research and citizen education on all aspects of government spending and taxation. Its purpose is to aid in the development of more efficient government at least cost to the taxpayer.

The organization also serves as a national information agency for organized taxpayer research groups throughout the country.

Volunteers Will Continue Despite Disappearances

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Several hundred volunteer civil rights workers training to go to Mississippi this summer still intend to proceed with their plans despite the disappearance of three of their colleagues in that Southern state, a spokesman says.

Observers on the campus of the Western College for Women said the second class of volunteers for the Mississippi Summer Project appeared shaken but undaunted by the news that Andy Goodman, 20, of New York City, a member of the first class, and two fellow civil rights workers are missing in central Mississippi.

"As far as we know, no one withdrew from the project after hearing the news," said a spokesman for the National Council of Churches, which operates the training courses together with the Council of Federated Organizations.

The spokesman said 388 persons, including staff members, are taking part in the second phase of the program.

"This tragedy has had no effect at all on the project," the spokesman said. "The curriculum will continue as planned."

He said the students were told repeatedly to consider whether they still wanted to go through with the project.

Bayard Rustin, organizer of last summer's march on Washington, was to speak to the volunteers today.

The students heard an address Tuesday night by the Rev. Robert W. Spike, director of the Church Council's Commission on Religion and Race, who told them the churches must not relax in their part in the civil rights struggle.

Boy's Arms, Legs Amputated by Wheels of Train

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two women watched Tuesday as a teenage boy leaped from car to car on a slow-moving train —then slipped and plunged to the tracks.

"I shouted to him, real loud, to lie still and not move," said Mrs. Lois Walsh.

The boy apparently heard. He ducked his head.

Then, said Mrs. Walsh, "something beneath one of the cars caught him and turned him over and over beneath the wheels."

When ambulance attendants reached the scene, they called for the coroner. The apparently lifeless body of Walter Felder lay between the tracks. The train's wheels had amputated his arms and legs.

Then attendants detected a spark of life. Walter, 13, was hospitalized. Five surgeons battled to keep him alive. In a corridor outside, his mother, Ann McGruder, 42, waited. "My boy is strong," she said. "He's very husky. I'm sure if anyone can pull through this, he can. He's a real boy."

CC Radio Station To Build New 137-Foot Tower

Colorado College's FM radio station, KRCC, has received permission from the Federal Communications Commission to put up its new 137-foot tower.

The tower, valued at $1,400, was given to the college by radio station KRDO. The gift was announced by KRDO president and general manager Harry W. Hoth, a member of the Colorado College class of 1948.

KRCC, the oldest FM radio station in Colorado, also received a gift of $5,500 from B. H. Smartt, president of the Smartt Construction Company and a member of the Colorado College class of 1952. The grant from Smartt will be used to install the new antenna system and to move the station's transmitter from South Hall to Rastall Center where the studio now is located.

The college station has been operating with a 96-foot tower. "The new 137-foot tower will greatly increase our signal," said Woodson Tyree, associate professor of drama, speech and radio.

He said the station also had received a grant from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Winkler of Wichita, Kan., both Colorado College graduates, to help with the move.

Structural engineering for the new tower and the foundation will be done by Pete Tyree, Colorado Springs superintendent of building inspection. He received a bachelor's degree in engineering from Colorado College in 1951. The radio station was established at Colorado College in 1951 by a gift from Miss Margaret Merle-Smith of New York during her senior year.

GOP Solons Charge LBJ To 'Sabotage' Convention

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's call to Congress to go on a six-day work week until next month's Republican national convention brought angry protests today from GOP House leaders.

"It just isn't fair play," said Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

"This looks like an attempt by the President of the United States to sabotage the Republican convention," commented Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the GOP Platform Committee.

The committee starts its sessions in San Francisco July 6, one week before the convention opens. Many members of Congress are on the committee. Many others want to air their views before it.

Republicans had counted on the House being in recess the entire week starting July 6, with the Senate holding only token sessions.

The recess outlook has dimmed because of Johnson's reported insistence that Congress enact the civil rights bill and start action on his antipov-

'Oral Confession' Is Blasted by Defense Attorney

Lawyer Tom Gresham filed a motion in District Court Monday requesting the court to issue an order directing District Attorney Pat Hinton to "refrain from and stop making or releasing any statements which would prejudice the rights" of Gresham's client, Richard Olon Gooch, charged with the murder of his wife.

Gresham was referring to a statement made last week by Hinton to the press concerning an alleged oral confession given by the defendant and his taking of a lie detector test. Gresham has described the district attorney's conduct as "highly prejudicial" and "unprofessional."

Gooch, 38, a Ft. Carson sergeant, is accused of fatally shooting his wife, Gloria Dean Gooch, 32, at the couple's home, 795 Main St., with a .32 caliber revolver June 13.

Gresham also filed two further motions, one requesting a copy of the coroner's autopsy report and a second for pictures of the Gooch home.

All three motions are scheduled to be argued in court Friday.

Two Men Killed As Fireworks Barge Explodes

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — A fireworks-laden barge exploded in a fury of rockets, flares and bombs on the Hudson River Tuesday night, killing two men. Thousands of spectators cheered. They thought it was part of the show.

Half a million persons lined the riverbanks in Manhattan and New Jersey for the fireworks spectacle, produced since 1957 by Macy's department store.

Two other barges, whose crews apparently were unaware of the fatal accident, continued firing rockets into the sky.

At the finale, 20 minutes later, spectators some distance from the blast, off 96th Street, still were cheering. A hush fell on thousands of others as news of the blast spread.

Madame Nhu Is Denied U.S. Visa After All

PARIS (AP)—The U.S. State Department has denied Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu a visa, saying her activities would be "prejudicial to the public interest or endanger the welfare, safety or security of the United States."

The outspoken former First Lady of South Viet Nam has repeatedly blamed the late President John F. Kennedy and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for the coup in which her husband and her brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, were assassinated.

The Conservative Party Club of Flushing, N.Y., had invited Mrs. Nhu to address its members July 7 on "The Truth of the Viet Nam Affair."

Mrs. Nhu had no immediate comment on Tuesday's announcement.

She was in the United States when her brother-in-law's regime was overthrown last November, and now lives in Paris.

Sgt. York Put On Critical List In Hospital

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — World War I hero Sgt. Alvin York has been placed on the critical list at Veterans Hospital here as the result of pneumonia in his right lung.

"He has developed pneumonia and his blood pressure has fallen," said a hospital spokesman. "This may be due to a blood clot in the lung, which he has had before, or a blood stream infection. He is a sick man."

Until pneumonia developed Tuesday, York's doctors were beginning to hint that he might soon return to his home in tiny Pall Mall, Tenn., about 140 miles northeast of here. The 76-year-old medal of honor winner was rushed here June 19 after suffering a recurrence of internal bleeding.

This is the tenth time in less than two years that York has been hospitalized. He has been bedridden since suffering a stroke several years ago.

York etched his name in American history in 1918 when he killed 25 German soldiers and captured 132 others during the battle of the Argonne Forest in France.

Rainfall Heavy In Portions Of Deep South

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy rain fell in portions of the Deep South and in the Ohio Valley today, but elsewhere mostly clear weather prevailed.

A storm that developed Tuesday night dropped more than 1½ inches of rain at Meridian, Miss., and about 1.30 inches at the Cairns Air Force Base in Alabama. Bradford, Pa., had a rainfall of nearly three-fourths of an inch.

Temperatures for the most part were seasonal, ranging from 90-plus readings in the desert Southwest to the 40s around southern Lake Superior.

Partial Lunar Eclipse Will Be Visible Locally

Moonwatchers in the Rocky Mountain Area will be able to see at least one half of the lunar eclipse tonight, the first of two total eclipses of the moon this year.

Since the total eclipse begins at 6:06 p.m. Mountain Standard Time, the moon will be below the horizon and invisible from local vantage points at that time. The satellite will begin to emerge from the center of the earth's shadow at 6:58 p.m. and will leave the umbra or deep part of the shadow at 8:03 p.m. and the penumbra, or partial shadow, at 9:14 p.m.

Moonrise is slated for 7:24 p.m. in the local area. This means that the eclipse will be in progress at the time the orb rises to view here.

Many parts of the world will be able to view the phenomenon in its entirety.

Possibly one of the finest vantage points will be on 1,530-foot Cadillac Mountain on the island of Mount Desert off the coast of Maine.

Astronomical authorities predict the next total lunar eclipse will occur Dec. 18 of this year.

Russian Labor Camps Said 'Country Clubs'

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet labor camps have become country clubs, where drunkards, prostitutes and other "parasites" enjoy sunbathing, good food and vodka, the government paper Izvestia complains.

The social misfits sent to detention centers for rehabilitation "are just warming themselves in the sun and they are fed. They should be made to work from dawn to dusk and they should be punished more," said Izvestia.

Scranton Seeks Delaware and New Jersey Votes

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania took his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination into neighboring Delaware and New Jersey today.

With a combind delegate strength of 52 votes, the two states were first on a list of regions to be visited by Scranton during his second full week of an 11th-hour bid to overtake and surpass the front runner for the nomination, U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

After a morning appearance in Wilmington, Del., Scranton was to cap the day by giving the principal address at a Newark, N.J., $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner.

Wednesday Scranton will visit Charleston, W.Va., and Miami, Fla. His staff was working on appearances in Ohio and Michigan later in the week.

The current Associated Press delegate poll shows that in Delaware all 12 delegates are committed to favorite son Sen. John J. Williams. Scranton's people believe they can capture at least 7 of those votes, if released by Williams.

The figures for New Jersey showed 8 for Goldwater, 2 for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 1 for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, 4 for Scranton and 25 uncommitted.

In the AP poll Goldwater's total indicated delegate support would give him more than enough for the nomination — if the support held up through the first ballot at the Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

Scranton said during his 4,000-mile flying tour of five Midwestern states last week that his objective was to visit every delegation he could that was not legally bound to Goldwater.

Scranton told a news conference Monday that results of his first tour in the Midwest were "better than I expected."

Asked to specify states from which he had received favorable reports, Scranton named North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri.

Scranton told his news conference that he sees the GOP nomination going to either himself or Goldwater.

"It is possible, but improbable, it would be a third person," said Scranton, adding: "I haven't thought about a possible compromise candidate."

Scranton was asked about published reports that some top Republicans were aiding his campaign privately. He replied that he had been in contact with many party leaders, including two former national chairmen, Leonard W. Hall and Meade Alcorn, before and after he decided to run, but made no direct references as to whether they were supporting his bid.

Scranton was asked also whether he had been in contact with former New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who was the GOP presidential nominee in 1944 and 1948.

"I understand he is meeting in New York to be helpful in the campaign," Scranton said.

In New York, Dewey's office said it knew nothing about any meeting.

After the news conference, Scranton flew to Washington and paid courtesy calls on Senate and House Republican leaders to compliment them on their support of civil rights legislation.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told a reporter that Scranton "popped into my office to compliment me on my support of the civil rights bill." Dirksen said Scranton "was only here for a moment."

Scranton has used Goldwater's vote against the civil rights bill last Friday as a principal issue in the pre-convention campaign.

In his news conference Scranton reiterated that he would "be delighted to debate Sen. Goldwater anytime, any place."

ORDER ASKED

DENVER (UPI)—The former president of CD&I Lumber Inc., of San Acacio, Colo., has asked the U.S. District Court for a temporary restraining order against the secretary-treasurer and vice president of the firm. The action, filed by J. J. Cable of Wichita Falls, Tex., asked for the order to prevent the officials from dissipating company assets and transferring the firm to Artesia, N.M. Cable charged one of the officials, Secretary-Treasurer C. A. Denton of Artesia, had ousted him as president March 27. The suit said actions by Denton and Vice President Floyd Ison of San Luis, Colo., have caused the company to lose $21,000 and run up more debts than it can pay.

NEW YORK (AP)—Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says teen-age Negro hoodlums "are undercutting gains made by hundreds of Negro and white youngsters who went to jail for human rights."

Flower, Garden Show Getting Wide Support

The Colorado Springs Flower and Garden Show, scheduled for June 25-26 at the City Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Broadmoor Garden Club, continues to enlist widespread community support, according to Mrs. M. A. Esmiol, chairman. Latest additions to the show will be three major displays of massed blooms in the auditorium lobby.

These will be installed by Dr. P. A. Loomis, Upton Gardens Inc., and Colorado Springs Wholesale Florists Inc., and will not be in competition, Mrs. Esmiol said. They will occupy a great part of the space in the lobby and will add much to the beauty of the show.

Dr. Loomis, nationally known Colorado Springs iris hybridizer who won the President's Cup at last year's American Iris Association convention in Denver, will have an exhibition of massed iris blooms. Dr. Loomis has been working in the field of hybridization for some 60 years and his iris gardens are well known to Pikes Peak residents.

Tentative plans for the Upton Garden Inc. exhibit call for massed tulip blossom, but these may change, Mrs. Esmiol said. Upton Gardens Inc. is one of the oldest and best-known nurseries in the area.

The Colorado Springs Wholesale Florists Inc. exhibit will feature a massive display of their special carnations, ranging in color from deep red through palest pink. This is expected to give a spectacular effect.

The Flower and Garden Show will open at 11:00 a.m. on June 25 and 26. Closing hour is 8:30 p.m. on both days.

mands still outstripping production. Such a condition brought about what he termed "sugar crisis" in 1963.

Raw cane sugar prices in the United States in 1963 touched the highest points reached since shortly after World War I, the sugar executive stated, adding: "There also was experienced the greatest threat of a national sugar shortage since World War II."

The beet sugar industry, he remarked, was instrumental in stemming the tide of high prices and short supplies when the emergency developed, doing so by increasing production sharply, when called upon by the Government to do so, and by selling sugar at from $1 to $3 per hundred pounds less than the refined cane sugar price.

In response to Government urgings for greater production, O'Rourke said the beet sugar producers made or permitted themselves to make large expenditures for plant expansion.

"The result is that the productive capacity of the beet sugar industry is now far in excess of the annual marketing quota prescribed by the current version of the Sugar Act. An increase in the quota of at least 750,000 tons is necessary and has been proposed to bring the quota into reasonable relationship with the productive ability of the industry."

During the past year, O'Rourke reported to stockholders, Holly Sugar Corporation had a "new world record" by slicing beets and producing sugar on every day of the calendar year and every day of the Corporation's fiscal year April 1, 1963-March 31, 1964), the only time that a single beet sugar producer anywhere in the world has accomplished this, so far as can be ascertained.

"This is remarkable because of the seasonal nature of the industry, which generally is confined to a manufacturing cycle which begins in the fall or late summer and extends to the end of the calendar year, or into the early part of the following year. So far as can be ascertained, this is the first time anywhere in the world that a single beet producer has processed beets into refined sugar on every day of a full years."

Stockholders attending the annual meeting at Corporation Trust Company also were given a review of last year's financial results and a summary of current crop prospects in areas served by Holly refineries. Earnings, O'Rourke stated, for the fiscal year were at the all-time record high of $3,571,140 compared to $2,608,482 for the preceding fiscal year. Net income was $5.26 per share of common stock compared to $3.75 per share in the preceding year.

Black Forest Road to Be Closed One Day

Highway 189, the Black Forest road, will be closed for 24 hours beginning at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Traffic will be re-routed over Burgess Road, according to Charles L. Smith, county road commissioner.

Smith said the road is being closed near Long's Corner for the purpose of applying limestone chip sealcoating, which will complete the paving job on that section of the road.

The commissioner said county commissioners or road supervisors from 13 other counties in Colorado will be on hand about mid-morning Thursday to observe the process employed by El Paso County.

The men are members of the Streets and Highways Committee of the Colorado County Commissioners Association. Smith is chairman of the committee.

Smith said Adams and Boulder counties have used a similar process to the one which El Paso County uses in laying the sealcoating, but that none of the counties have used the exact method employed here.

During the tour, County Engineer Tom Russell will discuss briefly the application of limestone chips and seal proofing. Bob Walters, highway superintendent, will discuss some aspects of the procedure as will an asphalt engineer who will be present.

Visiting officials will be coming from Alamosa, Adams, Boulder, Baca, Arapahoe, Crowley, Fremont, Jefferson, Park, Prowers, Teller, Weld and Pueblo counties.

City to Engage Engineer in Train Speed Study

City Manager John M. Biery was authorized to spend up to $500 for a consulting engineer to aid a city committee in determining the safe speeds for trains through Colorado Springs.

The committee, with Jasper Ackerman as chairman, was set up several weeks ago by Mayor Harry Hoth to determine safe speeds for the trains within city limits.

Hoth requested the committee after a series of accidents involving trains and vehicles here. He andother councilmen were of the opinion that most trains ignored the current speed limits in the city.

The mayor said that the railroads did not seem to feel it was their responsibility to add safety factors at the intersections and proposed that the speed limit be reduced to five miles an hour through the city if necessary.

Hoth said Tuesday that Ackerman had requested the retaining of an engineer with some knowledge of trains to aid the committee in its efforts.

Two Boys Hurt In Scooter Mishap Tuesday

A passenger on the back of the scooter, Robert Allen Lillie Jr., 13, of 2650 E. Pikes Peak Ave., suffered a possible broken jaw and minor abrasions and contusions. He was also taken to Penrose.

Police said a car driven by Leo Sussman, 41, of Ent AFB, was northbound when it slowed to allow another vehicle to make a turn. The northbound scooter struck the car on the right rear. The driver of the scooter was ticketed for following too close.

the way across town to park his truck to get another vehicle to go and see about his family? Think of your brother, gentlemen. We don't need this law," Mrs. Perkins said.

Earlier Attorney Lee Goodbar, appearing for the three larger firms in town, and Attorney Robert Johnson, representing the nine smaller firms, told council that the law would work an economic hardship on their clients.

They said that often during the day the men on the routes had to stop to phone into their office or homes to determine if they have no customers, missed anyone along the route or if they had special pick-ups.

Under the new law, they wouldn't be able to do this in Colorado Springs unless they went to an industrial zone.

They pointed out that the new law would prevent the men from stopping to take a coffee break at a restaurant anywhere in the city limits. The men could not even stop in the city for lunch.

One of the arguments put forth by council was that lengthy stops in the city was a danger to health and welfare.

The attorneys pointed out that all of the trucks were "sealed" trucks by law. They also pointed out that stops at some of the supermarkets lasted for more than 30 minutes while the men loaded the trash and garbage.

"You don't consider this a health hazard," Goodbar said.

Both he and Johnson agreed that this was an unreasonable regulation.

Councilman William S. Roe was the first to agree and quickly moved that the amendment to the ordinace be defeated. It was by a unanimous vote.

erty program before the convention.

The President said at a news conference Tuesday he wants Congress to work longer and act on about 30 "desirable" proposals before adjournment.

He prodded the legislators to give his proposals their "full attention six days a week until the Republican convention" and then return to work after the convention.

Leaders had planned to seek final adjournment before the Democratic convention opens in Atlantic City Aug. 24.

Johnson listed these matters as among those he wants Congress to act on:

Mass transportation, wilderness preservation, area redevelopment, education assistance, Securities Act amendments, water pollution control, foreign aid, federal aid for hospital construction, extension of the food stamp program, pay increases for government officials and employes.

Extension of the debt limit and emergency excise taxes, the international coffee agreement, aid for highway construction, interest equalization taxes on foreign invesments, the antipoverty program, medical assistance for the elderly, rehabilitation of the Appalachian region, housing, nurse training assistance, immigration law revisions, land conservation, juvenile delinquency, sales of surplus food abroad and water resources research.

Judge Sutton To Keynote Demo Sessions

Judge Leonard Sutton will keynote the Democratic Convention Assembly in the Division I Courtroom of the County Courthouse at 10 a.m. Saturday. Judge Sutton, a native of Colorado Springs and prominently associated with many civic and professional activities here until his elevation to the supreme bench in 1956, is a candidate for reelection.

According to John F. Bennett, county chairman, the Convention and assembly will first organize and then will nominate delegates to the state convention, which in turn will elect delegates to the national convention and will name a national committeeman and committeewoman.

Steve McNichols and Jean Graham are the only candidates so far announced for these two posts.

The convention will then adjourn and five representative district assemblies, to designate candidates to the state house of representatives will meet.

When their work is concluded senatorial district 11 will meet to designate a candidate to the state senate.

At 1:30 p.m. the County Assembly will convene to designate two candidates for county judge and two for county commissioner and to elect a slate of delegates to the state assembly convention at Denver July 18 and to the congressional assembly at Pueblo July 11.

"I am sure," Bennett said, "that before our county meeting several excellent candidates will make their announcements and that several will be brought forth at the assembly. I also note quite a flurry of interest among both supporters of Frank Evans of Pueblo and Hugh Ross of Colorado Springs for the congressional race, and the action of the local assembly in picking delegates could affect this contest."

Lodge Declares He Has No Hidden Political Plans

committed convention votes to win the nomination if his delegates stand pat, generally discounted Lodge's move.

Goldwater, in a statement issued Tuesday, avoided any reference to Lodge's declaration that he would campaign for Scranton.

Instead, the Arizonan said, "Ambassador Lodge is to be congratulated for bearing up this long under such adverse conditions. The Johnson-McNamara program of indecision and vacillation has made it impossible for him to carry out his ambassadorial functions properly and undoubtedly motivated his resignation." Lodge gave no hint of such a factor in his letter of resignation.

While nobody questioned the sincerity of Lodge's commitment to back Scranton, some party strategists noted there were elements present that could lead to unpredictable developments.

This would be true particularly, they said, if there was a resurgence of Lodge's popularity in the national polls. These listed him as top choice of the rank and file for the nomination before he ran second to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the May 15 Oregon primary. Some polls still give Lodge high ratings.

there. In addition, we have granted more tens of millions to Nasser in loans at ¾ of one per cent interest."

Against this background, Morris vehemently declared he was utterly unable to understand "why this country should subordinate its policy to the self-serving interests of the U.A.R."

"Why should American farmers not be permitted to supply a demand outside of our country which is not being met from other sources?" demanded Morris. "What possible reason can be advanced for refusing to permit importing countries to buy surplus American stocks for dollars when supplies from elsewhere are unavailable?"

Pointing out that one of the serious financial problems facing the U.S. is the persistent balance-of-payments deficit, Morris contended the sale of the surplus extra long staple cotton would importantly contribute to offsetting this deficit.

"Not only would the export of this cotton yield the Treasury upwards of $25 million in foreign exchange, so vital to our international balance - of - payments position," said Morris, "but also save the government what it costs to store this cotton for three years.

"Our growers urgently favor the sale of this surplus cotton. Foreign buyers are clamoring for it. It would net the government a handsome profit and save taxpayers millions in storage costs. There is every reason why this cotton should be sold. Only the State Department is balking at it — in line with its policy of constant truckling to Nasser."

SPURIOUS COMPROMISE

Under Representative Morris' militant lambasting and a storm of protests from cotton growers, the State Department has proposed a so-called "compromise."

Characteristic of the department, this scheme seemingly does something but actually doesn't.

In effect, what the "compromise" acounts to is that while it offers to clear the way for export sales of the surplus extra long staple cotton, actually the door is open only a crack — if that much!

Under this backstage deal, the Commodity Credit Corporation would be authorized to sell abroad the more than 150,000 (500-lb) bales of this government-owned cotton at a minimum of 49 cents a lb. — the current support (loan) price to farmers.

The joker is that the world price is around 42 cents a lb.

In other words the U.S. cotton would still be at a competitive disadvantage; the 49 cents a lb. minimum would be a crippling damper on sales. The only prospect for large-scale sales would be a rise in the world market price — a distinct gamble.

This backstage "compromise" concocted by the State Department, is now pending in the White House for President Johnson's approval.

The chances are strong he will okay it.

The Commodity Credit Corporation has some $50 million invested in this cotton in price supports ranging from 53 to 49 cents a lb. Most of the cotton is grown in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. To meet foreign competition on this select grade cotton, U.S. growers have twice obtained congressional approval to cut price supports.

As a result of these and other efforts, U.S. consumption of this cotton has more than doubled in the past five years.

Dure to rising world demand and supply shortages abroad, prices have soared. In the past year, the U.A.R. has raised its export prices twelve times, and Peru and the Sudan have hiked certain of their grades 50 per cent. The prospects are for continued tight supplies outside the U.S.

The U.A.R is the biggest producer of extra long staple cotton, with 947,000 bales last year. The Sudan was second with 350,000 bales; Peru third with 150,000 bales. The three countries have exported the equivalent of more than $200 million, some of it in barters and other trade deals.

An estimated two-thirds of the U.A.R. crop went to the Soviet bloc in payment for tanks, planes, rockets, naval vessels and other armaments Nasser is furiously piling up.

During Khrushchev's recent visit to the U.A.R., Nasser persuaded him to allow Egypt to sell more of its cotton on the world market to obtain much-needed foreign currency. As a direct consequence of the Egyptian dictator's sinister weapons build-up and costly military intervention in Yemen, his hard currency reserves have sunk from $277 million in 1957 to a low of $15 million this year.

To help him bolster these crucial reserves, the State Department early this month again went to bat for Nasser.

As reported in this column, the International Monetary Fund (I.M.F.) under State Department insistence, ladled out a $40 million loan to Nasser at one per cent interest. The Treasury and other Monetary Fund members sharply objected, but the State Department had its way.

At the urging of Senator Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, who has been vigorously tangling with Small Business Administrator Eugene Foley over his demand for 3 per cent interest rate on loans to victims of the devastating Alaskan earthquake, Senator Joseph Clark, D-Pa., head of the International Finance Subcommittee, prepared to look into the I.M.F. loan.

But this is being blocked by Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

He is claiming his committee has jurisdiction over this matter, and indicating he is against the proposed scrutiny. Fulbright hews closely to State Department policy lines — and it wants no probe of the Nasser loan.

Federals Scour Swamps For Missing Workers

into the night. More patrolmen were expected today.

Missing are Andy Goodman, 20, and Michael Schwerner, 24, both of New York City, and James Cheney, 22, Negro from nearby Meridian.

They were last seen Sunday night in Philadelphia after Cheney paid a $20 fine for speeding.

The White House announced that President Johnson had ordered Dulles to the state to coordinate the probe.

Dulles will confer with Gov. Paul B. Johnson, other top state officials and the FBI on the progress of the investigation.

Gov. oJhnson, who earlier had told a news conference the highway patrol would search unrelentingly for the missing youths, said he would welcome Dulles.

"So long as Mr. Dulles is objective, I have no doubt that he will find that law and order prevail," the governor said.

The station wagon was found about 100 feet from State 21, 15 miles northeast of Philadelphia, where Owl Creek backs away where Owl Creek backs away to form a backwater slough.

There was speculation that the bodies of the three civil rights workers were somewhere under the dark, cold waters.

The station wagon was towed to the garage here and kept under guard. Two FBI laboratory technicians were to study it today.

Schwerner, who had been working in the Meridian area for several months, Cheney and Goodman were last sen about 10:30 p.m. Sunday, leaving Philadelphia in a southerly direction.

An FBI agent said the station wagon apparently was burned Sunday night or before dawn Monday.

Goodman was one of 175 out-of-state volunteers who arrived in Mississippi over the weekend to take part in Negro voter registration and education projects after training at Oxford, Ohio.

Another group of volunteers, mostly college students, paused in Washington Tuesday en route to Mississippi from Oxford. Steve Bingham, a spokesman, said the 23-member group was apprehensive that some may be mistreated.

"We go afraid, yet dedicated," he said.

Schwerner's wife was flying to Mississippi from Ohio to await word of her husband.

—In Washington, Rep. Arthur Winstead, D-Miss., whose home is Philadelphia, said "all self-respecting people down there are worried, for we don't want any violence."

Winstead said the "professional politicians and so-called church leaders" who back civil rights workers, come from places "with ten times more crime than Mississippi and should try to solve their own problems at home."

—The parents of two of the missing men called on President Johnson Tuesday and were assured the government is doing everything in its power to locate them. White House press secretary George Reedy said the President gave Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goodman and Nathan Schwerner, all of New York, a full report on steps taken by the Justice Department and the FBI.

—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy delayed for a few hours his scheduled flight to Germany to keep an eye on the Mississippi situation.

—The 2,000 delegates to the Washington convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People voted to demonstrate at the Justice Department today. An NAACP resolution spoke of a "hate-infested atmosphere" in Mississippi and said the disappearance of the three men indicated "foul play and possibly another lynching."

—The Commission on Religion and Race of the Unitarian-Universalist Association announced in Washington a reward of $1,000 to help find or solve the the mysterious disappearance.

—James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, flew to Meridian to join the search because Schwerner and Chaney are members of his organization. "I can only help—and hope," Farmer told newsmen. Meridian police gave Farmer a protective guard.

—At Jackson, John Lewis, national chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, said civil rights leaders would try to get President Johnson not just to "investigate incidents after they've happened, but to provide protection for the workers all over the state."

National Guard OCS Graduates At Ft. Carson

"Only the dead soldier has seen the end of war." With this quotation from Plato, Officer Candidate Terry L. Lahn summed up the reasons for enlisting in the Colorado Army and Air National Guard Officer Candidate School program, as he delivered a speech during the graduation of his class Friday, at Ft. Carson.

Nineteen members of the Colorado Guard received 2nd Lt. commissions last Friday, thus completing a rigorous year of Officer Candidate School. From here, these new officers will become section or platoon leaders in the various units in the Colorado Army and Air Guard to which they may be assigned.

The master of ceremonies at the graduation was Brig. Gen. Milton Ehrlich, commanding general of the Colorado Army National Guard and Superintendent of OCS. The major address was delivered by Maj. Gen. Joseph C. Moffitt, the adjutant general of Colorado.

Officer Candidate Gary L. Miller was the recipient of both awards presented at the ceremony. Col. Mark E. Conway, chief of staff of the Colorado Guard, presented Miller with the Association of the United States Army Leadership Award for outstanding leader of the the class.

Lt. Col. Hershel Yeargan, commander of the 104th Signal Battalion, presented the Erickson Trophy to Miller. This trophy is presented to the graduate with the most impressive combination of academic prowess and leadership.

The oath of office was administered to the 19 officer candidates by Capt. Robert C. Thompson, camandant of the school, and Maj. Gen. Moffitt presented the diplomas to the new 2nd Lt's.

For this class of 19 officers-to-be, it all began where it ended, at the Noncommissioned Officers Academy at Ft. Carson last summer. Two weeks of summer encampment at Ft. Carson during 1963 was the first order of business for these young men as they embarked on their year.

After summer camp, these OCS members attended ten weekend meetings at Camp George West, near Golden. Activity there ran the gamut from classroom orientation to tactical field maneuvers, teaching the men how to command and to take commands.

The last phase of OCS took place at Ft. Carson during the last two weeks, as the candidates went through their second period of summer camp. Even as this class number seven, took their oaths, class number eight sat in the audience, just embarking on their first period of summer camp and the OCS program.

Perhaps after witnessing the graduation exercises, the entire program will carry a little more meaning to this new class and the rigorous one-year program will be more bearable, as the climax and award, the gold bar of command and responsibility, can be easily envisioned.

Two Men Killed As Fireworks Barge Explodes

ternational Fireworks Co. of North Bergen, N.J., said "a low burst that apparently ignited shells on the deck of the barge" caused the explosion.

Killed were Anthony Amato, 60, of Secaucus, N.J., and Anthony De Francisco, 40, of Sparkill, N.Y.

Four other men on the barge were rescued by the tug which was towing it. One was treated at a hospital for burns and released.

Less than an hour earlier, an explosion destroyed an ammunition room in the sub-basement of a Manhattan armory where about 385 National Guard reservists were attending a weekly drill.

Nineteen were injured. All but four were released after hospital treatment. Two of the four were in serious condition.

Most of the reservists in the 71st Infantry Regiment Armory, Park Ave. and 33rd St., were two floors above the explosion and heard only a dull thud. The blast shook the building and knocked bricks from the roof, eight stories above the street.

Cause of the blast, which knocked out heavy concrete walls and blew off the steel doors to the room, has not been determined.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

BEATEN: It has been Rep. Otto E. Passman's boast that his appropriations subcommittee has slashed more than $8 billion from foreign aid in the nine years he has been chairman.

Tuesday, the Louisiana Democrat was beaten in his own subcommittee. It refused to go along with Passman's demand for a $514 million cut in the $3.5-billion foreign aid bill.

Passman stalked out of the closed meeting, telling reporters he would temporarily step down as chairman so he could oppose the bill on the floor.

President Johnson had argued against any cuts in the aid bill saying he had asked for a rock-bottom figure.

"It is ridiculous for a president of the United States to play politics to the extent that he has with this bill," said Passman. "He has worked tricks you couldn't even see in the circus."

Apparently referring to any presidential blandishments, Passman said: "I can give up postmasterships and airplane rides and sniffing in the rose garden."

ROTC: The House climaxed a long fight with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Tuesday. It passed a bill to expand the Reserve officer training program in high schools and colleges.

It was a personal victory for Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., who introduced the measure after becoming irked by McNamara's proposal last year to eliminate high school ROTC and curtail the college program. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Among other things it would expand junior ROTC from 254 high schools to a maximum of 2,000, continue the four - year ROTC program in colleges but allow a two - year program in those colleges that want one, and set up a scholarship program for ROTC students in colleges that would go up to $850 a year for tuition and books and $500 a year in monthly retainer pay.

FLIGHTS: The State Department has turned aside a Soviet protest against Pan American Airways' new flights between New York and West Berlin.

The Soviet Union protested that the direct flights were unlawful because the East German Communist government did not approve them and cautioned that the Soviet Union could not guarantee their safety.

A State Department spokesman, press officer Richard I. Phillips said Tuesday, "These flights are continuing on a normal basis. The U.S. government will hold the Soviet government responsible for the safety of all American aircraft in the Berlin air corridors."

European Editors Skimp on U.S. War Scare News

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON (AP) — European editors are reacting cautiously to the hardened U.S. attitude in Southeast Asia. Some express hope the United States will be cautious, too, especially over war with Red China.

War-scare headlines have been rare. Many newspapers did not even give front page display last weekend to Washington reports apparently intended as a warning to Communist China and North Viet Nam to leave their southern neighbors alone.

Editors who saw a real risk of war with Peking cautioned against "brinkmanship." There was no editorial urging for European countries to rush support for the United States in Southeast Asia.

Some commentators said the United States should first persuade the South Vietnamese and other threatened peoples to put up a stiffer fight of their own.

Here is a rundown:

BRITAIN—Only the Sunday Observer gave front page space to a Washington Report headlined: "U.S. ready to risk war with China."

British government sources have indicated Washington was not expecting military support from Britain because this country has its hands full with Malaysia, Cyprus and Aden.

FRANCE—The French support America's hard stand in Southeast Asia—but only if it is to negotiate from a position of strength. The French contend, with their own disastrous experience in mind, that a guerrilla war cannot be won—and they want no part of a clash with China. They favor negotiation and the eventual neutralization of all Southeast Asia, and insist such negotiations would have to involve Red China.

WEST GERMANY — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard told a recent news conference that his country must stand by its American ally in Southeast Asia—morally. The West German government has drawn the line at giving military assistance.

Editorially, Hamburg's mass circulation Bild-Zeitung wondered whether "the current American 'escalation' effort aims to scare or rattle the opponent or whether this means to release an apparatus for sharper warlike action."

NETHERLANDS: The Dutch newspapers speculated on both the wisdom and possible effectiveness of U.S. actions.

The Christian Democrat Volkskrant interpreted the stiffer Washington tone as an expression of "desperation," and added: "The State Department and the Pentagon learned nothing from the West's painful experiences in East Asia."

Both the Volkskrant and the liberal Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant speculated that the Johnson administration's increased toughness was intended partly to counteract demands of Republican Barry Goldwater for sterner action against the Reds.

PO Official Speaker for Exchange Club

Exchange Club members will have an opportunity to hear about unusual letters received by the postmaster when they attend their Thursday luncheon at the Embers Steak House.

The talk will be delivered by Harold C. Perry, superintendent of mails at the local postoffice. Perry will speak on the various correspondence addressed to the postmaster and the contents, amusing and otherwise, contained in such letters.

Perry is a native of Colorado Springs and is a graduate of the then Colorado Springs High School (now Palmer High).

Prior to his employment at the post office in 1937 as substitute clerk, he was in the grocery business with his father.

Mrs. Valentine Attends Conference

Mrs. Lois Valentine, credit manager of Kaufman's, is in Denver attending the 52nd Annual International Consumer Credit Conference.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Listen to Alex and face up to the zooming rise in juvenile crime throughout America. Then send for the "Behavior Test for Teen - Agers" and employ it to teach morality by the case method. For children don't inherit morality. It must be taught to each youngster!

By - GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.

Case T-408: Alex Z., aged 45, was a salesman riding with me recently.

He was talking to another salesman when I boarded the limousine.

"Recently I had a couple of clients visiting me in New York," Alex began.

"So I took them to the Stork Club, figuring they'd be interested in such a publicized spot.

"As I laid a $20 bill on the bar to pay for our drinks, the bartender rang up the amount.

"Then he paused a second and asked me if I wanted to pay for the ash tray my pal had filched from the bar or should I bill it to him.

"Well, I hadn't even seen my friend steal the ash tray as a souvenir, but the bartender apparently had eyes in the back of his head.

"Then the bartender said he had nice new ash trays, neatly wrapped in individual boxes, which he'd give my client for $2, but he'd prefer to have that used ash tray returned to the bar.

"When we were out on the street, this client who had tried to filch the ash tray said: 'Well, that teaches me a lesson.'

"I supposed he was just trying to take a souvenir home to his wife, and I imagine a lot of others get caught the same way, else why would the bartender have those new ash trays, already boxed for sale?"

BABY RATTLESNAKE FALLACY

A friend of mine once brought home a baby rattlesnake, much to his wife's shock and horror.

"But it can't hurt," he argued, "for it is just a baby."

But that baby rattlesnake soon grew into a bigger snake and then fanged one of the man's children, who narrowly escaped death.

So we need to stress more firmly the fact that small or "baby" thefts are also a crime, whether they involve only a souvenir ash tray or salt shaker, restaurant spoon or hotel towel.

Millions of Americans are petty thieves, figuring that it isn't a crime unless they embezzle large sums -- or else get caught!

Shoplifting is now the major crime wave in America. And the most tragic aspect of this form of stealing is the fact that most of the culprits, when caught, show no shame or remorse.

They are just irked because somebody spotted them!

J. Edgar Hoover has likewise warned us repeatedly about the breakdown in morality. It starts for lack of parental teaching for 13,000,000 children now reside in broken homes.

But many other youngsters with both parents together, still are not given specific moral training by the "Case Method."

Take up these specific moral problems, one at a time, in Sunday School or in a grammar school discussion period.

Remember, memorizing the Ten Commandments does NOT produce moralists!

Parents and teachers must bring those generalized Ten Commandments down to earth by specific cases, just as law and medical students are taught by the case method.

Send for my "Behavior Test for Teen - Agers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c. It applies to grammar schoolers, too.

Use it to help inject the specific case method into training children the differences between right vs. wrong.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Boy Is Electrocuted Answering Telephone

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—"It is as strange as anything I've ever seen," said Coroner Chester Hager as he ruled J. T. Marshall Jr., 6, was electrocuted by lightning Tuesday while answering a telephone.

He said the handset of the phone disintegrated but the cord leading to it was intact. The wall nearby and other parts of the telephone appeared undamaged.

The lightning preceded a thunderstorm, but Hager said no other visible marks were found on the house or telephone lines to indicate where lightning struck.

Sen. Case Says He Will Support Scranton's Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., broke with precedent today and announced he is supporting Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton for the GOP presidential nomination.

Case said in a statement he had hoped to follow his state's tradition of remaining an uncommitted delegate until the Republican National Convention opens in San Francisco next month.

But he added, "It appears that if leadership is not taken now, the convention would be foreclosed against Scranton before it met."

Case's action put at least two of New Jersey's convention votes in Scranton's column. Five New Jersey House members, including Rep. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, a delegate, announced Monday they are backing the Pennsylvania governor.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz. who has more than enough publicly committed votes to win the nomination if they do not melt away, has claimed only eight New Jersey delegates. These did not include any of those publicly announcing for Scranton.

Since the Pennsylvania governor jumped into contest the expectation had been that he would get most of New Jersey's votes.

Case said in a statement that "there are only two real possibilities for the nomination now and of the two he (Scranton) is the one who represents the thinking of the Republican party and of the people of New Jersey generally."

Scranton's own evaluation of the situation, made Monday at a news conference in Harrisburg, Pa., was that either he or Goldwater would become the nominee.

The Pennsylvania governor plans to meet today in Newark and Wilmington with delegates from New Jersey and Delaware as part of his drive to win the support of uncommitted and pro-Goldwater delegates.

Scranton plans to woo Ohio delegation decided Monday to cast its votes for favorite son Gov. James A. Rhodes on the first ballot.

Fifteen of the delegates back Goldwater and 10 favor Scranton.

The Ohio decision left Goldwater with 679 publicly committed first - ballot votes — 24 more than the 655 needed to nominate, according to The Associated Press. Scranton has 128.

Three top congressional supporters of Scranton said they were cautious but optimistic about the governor's chances to take the nomination away from Goldwater.

"I can't tell whether he'll be successful yet," said Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, "but we have many things moving in many states. There is a clear softening process occurring among the convention delegates."

Rep. Robert J. Corbett of Pennsylvania said the key to Scranton's success is whether he can erode Goldwater's Midwestern strength. Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, also of Pennsylvania said that if Scranton can take at least 50 delegates from Goldwater "he might be able to pull it off."

GIBBONS TESTIFIES

DENVER (UPI)—Denver attorney John J. Gibbons, 50, testified in his own defense Monday as his U.S. District Court trial on charges of evading $8,879 in personal income taxes neared an end. Gibbons repeated on the stand his contention that the charges were filed in vengeance by Internal Revenue Service agents who were involved in a civil suit over some uranium property with two of his clients and lost the case. The government called more than 220 witnesses against Gibbons before completing its prosecution last week.

Northwest Coast Of Cuba Is Mined

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Exile News Service claimed today that Cuba's northwest coast has been mined to prevent anti-Castro lapdings and to keep Cubans from fleeing the country.

The service, quoting underground sources, said mines have been placed 600 feet apart along the Pinar del Rio Province coast that faces Florida.

Armed Forces News

By STEVE TILLMAN

WASHINGTON — Special to Gazette Telegraph) —The U. S. Court of Appeals has rendered a ruling in the case of Army Reserve Maj. Arch E. Roberts for restoration to active duty, that has rocked Army personnel people. Roberts, one time "PIO" aide to former Army Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker, was relieved of active duty May 7, 1962, when within 15 months of making his 20 retirement, for disobedience of orders. He brought suit for restoration.

The law says that a Reserve officer on active duty with 18 years and 6 months of service "may be retained," until he qualifies for retirement "at the discretion of the appropriate Secretary." Up to now active duty Reserve officers have been considered as having a "temporary employe" status. This means they could be relieved at any time by administrative action.

The law stipulates that before a Regular officer may be relieved there must be certain board actions (commonly known as "B" boards). The Court of Appeals ruling however says that an active duty Reserve officer with "18 plus 6" cannot be relieved from active duty except by court-martial action calling for either a dishonorable or less-than-honorable discharge.

If the Department of Defense lets the court ruling stand without an appeal, it will mean that the "discretion of the Secretary" as contained in the law will be eliminated and that the only way an active duty Reserve officer with "18 plus 6" can be relieved will be by a court-martial regardless of his efficiency rating or anything else.

By the court's interpretation of the meaning of the expression, "at the discretion of ..." military sources in personnel believe that disciplinary control will suffer. No official comment has been made by Pentagon sources regarding the court's ruling.

Beginning in August the Army will survey more than 5,000 personnel records of non-active duty Reservists to check out the accuracy and up-to-dateness of the mobilization records for each Reservist. These records to be checked out are those maintained on non-unit Reservists at the 14 Corps headquarters.

The Official report of General Paul Adams of STRIKE COMMAND on the Reserve and National Guard units in Desert Strike is most complimentary to the civilian components.

New president of the National Association of Retired Civil Employes is Clarence Tarr of Springfield, Ill. He will make his home-base in Washington.

Rear Adm. Edgar H. Reeder, USN Reserve, of Helena, Mont., is the new president of the Reserve Officers Association. In its 1964 convention in June the ROA went on record as favoring restoration of recomputation of retired pay and the elimination of the dual compensation law of 1932. As of now this law applies only to retired Regular officers and certain AUS retired officers but not retired Reserve officers.

Warnings of the Pentagon and members of Congress as to the possible loss of medical and hospital facilities for retirees because of the rising cost and the increase in retirees did not stop the ROA from endorsing the proposal to authorize medical and hospital care for retired Reservists and dependents without regard to the present requirement of 8 years of active duty to so qualify. Most of the retired Reservists, age 60, have less than 8 years of active duty out of their 30 years in the Reserve.

To take care of the "unexpected" among Army personnel on active duty, the Army Emergency Relief disbursed $4,241.-140.84 in either loans or grants in the past year to assist 35,-695 military families.

The continuous increase in the average grade of Federal civilian jobs has occasioned a Bureau of the Budget review of the adequacy of existing agency management control. In addition to the "jumping" of a job classification by several grades, the civilian employes have received salary increases in the new grades.

The military has little or no opportunity to "inflate" its pay grades. There are two "promotional channels" for the military. One is the promotion of officers in their Regular status and the other is the AUS or temporary promotion while on active duty. The military also separates the monthly income into (1) pay and (2) allowances. When seeking pay increases only the pay is mentioned. Too many members of Congress are poorly informed as to the two pay benefits and as a result over-evaluate the monthly income of the military when the pay bills are pending.

Secretary of Defense McNamara has released a very lukewarm statement endorsing the supplemental military pay proposal. In this he said that the proposals are fully justified.

Advertising Man Finds Career in Fiction Writing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Slesar, who has written more television shows for Alfred Hitchcock's television series than any other author, has figured out a way to have his cake and eat it too.

Three days a week Slesar concentrates on his job as creative director of a large New York advertising agency. The other four days belong to his flowering career as a fiction writer.

"I keep my advertising job," said Slesar "because there is no security in writing."

He wrote—and promptly sold—his first short story about eight years ago when he was at home, ill, and had nothing else to do. A short time later, Joan Harrison, producer of the then-half-hour Hitchcock show bought one of his published stories. Since then, he has sold close to 40 stories and scripts—half-hour and, later, hour-long—to the show. He also has turned out two or three hard-cover whodunits, other short stories and currently has two ideas for series under consideration by a network and a film studio.

Where does he find his ideas?

"If you write, you are always on the lookout for something—maybe only a line that is overheard—that will give you an idea. A story is divided into three main parts—a beginning, a middle and an ending. The germ of the idea may be for any one of these. Then you keep fooling around until you have filled in the missing parts."

Slesar's most successful short story—it has been republished often in anthologies and made into a Hitchcock program—developed from a remark he overheard in a hotel restaurant. An elderly woman said to her companion, "I just don't know what is going to become of Alice. She just sits in that old house and refuses to leave."

Slesar worked and worked around that remark, finally coming up with "The Right Kind of House," a real thriller with a snapper ending about an elderly woman who remained stubbornly awaiting a buyer of a decaying old house on which she had put a ridiculously high sales price.

CBS signed Barbra Streisand Monday to a 10-year, $2 million contract. The 22-year-old singer-actress, who is the brightest new star to emerge in several season, will appear in a series of specials next season — perhaps starting with a one-woman show in the fall.

The competition to sign the star of the Broadway hit, "Funny Girl," was hot. CBS apparently won the day by offering her the sort of contract it gave Carol Burnett, which permitted her development in specials until the right series comes along.

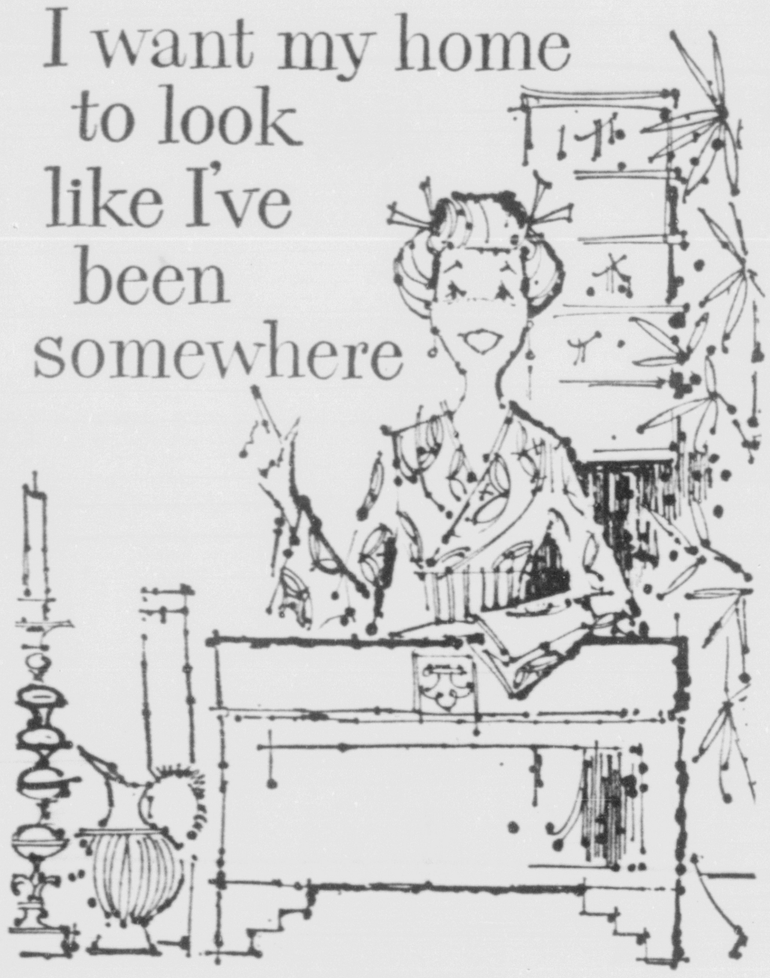
Research

GREENWICH, Conn. (UPI)—A new research organization has been set up here to "discover the cause of sudden unexpected deaths among healthy infants."

Now a leading cause of infant mortality, such deaths are responsible for 25 to 40 per cent of all deaths among children one month to two years of age, the New England Journal of Medicine reports. Children from ages two to six months, more boys than girls, are the most commonly stricken.

I want my home to look like I've been somewhere



"I've been to Chicago and New York and on a motor trip to Canada . . . but that's not what I mean. I like exotic things that look as though I'd found them in some remote market place. I told all this to one of those nice decorators from the Home Furniture Company. Well, I don't know where they all came from but I had so many things to choose from my head was swimming. So now my home has that 'I've been to faraway places' look and I couldn't be more pleased. If you have a dream about how you want your home to look call the Home Furniture Company. They charge not a penny for the services of their Interior Design Staff . . . and you may be surprised to learn that they can make your home beautiful even if your budget is modest.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I would like to pass along a hint to campers or hunters who make their temporary homes in tents.

Dampness is always a problem—but we have solved a portion of it.

We sleep on the floor of our tent (without cots). In the morning, when airing out blankets and sleeping bags, even with a good layer of newspaper for insulation, the floor of the tent would show a great amount of moisture.

The solution, therefore is . . . before pitching a tent, lay a plastic drop cloth on the area which has been cleared. These drop cloths can be bought at paint stores for about a dollar and they are usually 9 x 12 size. Be sure to cover all of the floor area of your tent.

Then place the tent over this plastic. In the morning you will have no wet floor!

We used this method for a week while camping in a damp area.

Now if someone could just find out how to keep the dampness out of the clothes we put on in the morning, we would appreciate it. —Mrs. J. Kroll

---

Anyone know? If so, do write to Heloise in care of this paper. Letters do not have to be signed. —Heloise

---

Dear Heloise:

After I wash my hand-knit bedspread or crocheted table cloth, I use my curtain stretcher to dry them. They always come out perfectly square.

Fold the cloth in half. Then put it (folded double) on the stretcher. Take any starch (homemade or purchased), put it into a finger-type squirt bottle and spray away.

After drying, the folded side which has been attached to the nails may be laid flat and restretched (leaving the pricked part in the middle of the curtain stretcher) and spray starched again. This will eliminate all the folds.

If a woman does not want the trouble of restretching, she may dampen a wash cloth and press the center fold on her ironing board.

At any rate, the cloth always comes out a perfect square. —Helen White

Dear Heloise:

If you have an extra bowl brush holder in the bathroom—instead of letting it sit idle, store extra rolls of toilet tissue in it. Mine holds four rolls nicely. The tissue is handy—and best of all, it gives more space in the linen closet.—Mrs. R. W. Spruce

---

When I was eight years old, I showed my mother a trick for making a meat sandwich.

She thought I was crazy for salt and peppering the bread instead of the meat until I explained to her that the salt and pepper didn't bounce off when I shook it on the buttered bread, and that it was distributed more evenly over the sandwich.—Billy Dean

Dear Heloise:

Take a fruit jar and fill it with flour, salt and pepper to taste and mix it well. Punch some holes in the lid with an ice pick and it's the most wonderful flour shaker in town.

By using this to shake over the grease when making gravy, I never have lumps. It is also wonderful to flour meats with, and easy to refill.—Mrs. R.

Dear Heloise:

We use a lot of lemon juice, so I squeeze lemons and fill my freezer trays. When the juice is frozen, I release the cubes and transfer them to a plastic bag and leave them in the freezer.

If the children want lemonade during the summer we add a cube to a glass of water, sugar, etc., and it's ready in a jiffy.

A cube of this juice is nice to put in a glass of coke, too. —Mrs. M. Schnalli

Sharon Louise Castner, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Castner, 2842 Illinois St., became the bride of George Gasek, son of Mrs. Josephine Gasek of Brooklyn, N.Y. in an evening ceremony on Friday, June 12.

Vows were exchanged before Jerry Sanderson in the East Side Church of Christ.

The bride's sister, Patricia Castner, was the maid of honor and Rodney Thomas was best man.

The bride wore a white street-length dress of cotton lace and a short veil which fell from a white flowered cap. She carried a bouquet of orchids and carnations.

Mrs. Gasek is a graduate of Wasson High School. She is employed in the Post Engineer's office at Ft. Carson. Mr. Gasek is stationed at Ent Air Force Base where he is a member of the NORAD Band. Following his discharge late this summer he will attend New Mexico State University.

Spicy

NEW YORK (UPI) — New plastic-topped spice tins are easy to open and just as easy to reseal. Each lid has two hinged openings—one for spooning and one for sifting. The spooning hole is contoured to fit a standard measuring spoon.

The new packages also are designed to stack one atop another. Prongs on the inside of the sifter flap prevent the sifter holes from clogging. The newly-designed containers will be used for all ground spices in the manufacturer's (McCormick) line except pepper, which is most commonly sifted instead of spooned.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North

Pass	1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ◇

East took full advantage of declarer's gross carelessness and induced the latter to sink his own ship.

After West was unable to keep the bidding open for his partner, North and South quickly bid themselves into a game contract in hearts.

West opened the deuce of diamonds and declarer played the ace from dummy for, in view of East's opening bid, taking the finesse would obviously be a wasted effort. The nine of hearts was led next and permitted to ride. When it held the trick, South followed up with the queen and East ducked once more. A third round of hearts cleared up the trump situation.

South led a small spade from his hand, West followed with the three and the ten was played from dummy. Without a sign of hesitation, East put the eight of spades on the trick. From South's point of view the queen was apparently located in West's hand. He accordingly led back to his ace of clubs in order to repeat the spade finesse. His plans received a severe jolt, however, when East topped dummy's jack of spades with the queen. A club return now drove out the king and, when East regained the lead with the ace of spades, he was able to cash a club trick to defeat the contract.

South's plan of campaign reveals both a careless touch and a spirit of greed. His handling of the trump suit was not carefully thought out. He should have arranged to win the second round of hearts in his hand—by leading a small heart to the ten—so that he could begin work on the spade suit. This enables him to save the ace of trumps for a reentry in order to make a second play in spades without having to open up the club suit. Had he coordinated his play of the hearts and spades, East's deft footwork would have gone for naught.

Declarer still had it in his power to save the day even after East had permitted North's ten to win the first spade trick. All South had to do was to lead a small spade from the dummy at this point. East will make his two spade tricks, but North's long card in the suit provides a parking place for South's losing club. Even if West turns up with the queen of spades, declarer can lead a spade later up to dummy's king-jack in order to establish the necessary discard. The suggested play may surrender an overtrick, but that is surely a negligible cost to declarer for the assurance of his game bid.

Smoking Trade Policy Is Being Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A broad congressional investigation into cigarettes opened today with a row over who, if anybody, should police smoking.

The first witness, Sen. Maurine B. Neuberger, came before the House Commerce Committee with a plea to let the Federal Trade Commission go ahead with its plans to require that cigarette containers have a health warning.

First, she asked Congress to "do nothing which would obstruct or impede the implementation" of the FTC program or a public health service plan for mass research and education on smoking.

Mrs. Neuberger also anticipated the testimony of a witness scheduled to follow her, Surgeon General Luther H. Terry. She said Terry would testify that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare "has now determined that HEW should be given legislative authority to regulate cigarette package labeling."

Smellie Family at Last Changes Name

LONDON (AP) — Roger Gordon Smellie, 33, had been called stinker for as long as he could remember. When playmates began applying the nickname to his three young sons, he decided a bad joke had gone on long enough.

The Roger Gordon Smellie family now is the Roger Gordon Hurst family, according to notice of a court order published in the official London Gazette today.

The London telephone directory lists three other Smellies —E.R., Dr. H.C. and Sheena.

Said E.R. Smellie: "No, I've got no plans to change mine. It suits me all right and if anyone's called me stinker I can't remember it."

Dalmatian Will Have to Split Home Visits

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Rorscharch, an 8-year-old Dalmatian, will spend the summer alternating between a sumptuous home with a splendid picture window and a leading thoroughbred farm.

His master and mistress, Thomas E. and Bessie Hager Masters, are being divorced and each wants sole possession of the animal.

Masters says he has a concrete block doghouse with a picture window for Rorscharch at his home at nearby Nicholasville. Mrs. Masters says she would keep the dog at Maine Chance Farm near Lexington.

Circuit Judge Nolan Carter ruled Tuesday they would alternate posession monthly, with visitation privileges, until the divorce is final.

After that, the judge said, he would have to figure out who gets the dog—"or eventually just have to cut it in half."

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Louisville school system and civic organizations made a special effort last summer to get dropouts to return to school. They persuaded 261 who had left junior and senior high to return. Before the school year was over, three-fifths of them had quit again.

Valley Hi Country Club May Be Part of City

Valley Hi Country Club may wake up a month or two from now and find itself a part of the City of Colorado Springs whether it wants to be or not.

The preliminary decision was made for the club by City Council Tuesday when Roy Pring requested annexation of 1.400 acres of land lying east of S. Circle Drive and south of Airport Road. The area will be known as Pikes Peak Park addition No. 6.

Pring's property would have left the Country Club a virtual island in the City.

Council's policy has been to eliminate these islands wherever possible to keep the city limits uniform. Pring's representatives offered to knock off a portion of the land requested for annexation that closed in the island. Council was adamant that the country club be included in the petition.

The representative said he couldn t arbitrarily include the country club in the petition and legal description without consultation.

He was told that it made no difference. The entire area would be advertised as being considered for annexation. When the petition reached the City Planning Commisssion, representatives of the Club could appear to oppose the annexation of their property.

The Planning Commission would then decide to include the club or knock it out of the request. This would not affect Pring's property.

Council accepted the petition for annexation with the requirement that the country club property be included in the request.

In other action Tuesday, Council approved:

—A resolution authorizing a request for Federal Grant Aid for participation in the extension of the Sewage Disposal Plant for sludge disposal equipment and housing.

—A Resolution approving a performance bond in connection with right of way on the Homestake Project.

—A request from Hugh J. Ross that the city vacate and relinquish certain easements on a plot of property facing and lying south of Sheldon Avenue east of 19th Street.

—The change of name of a section of Maizeland Road to Academy Boulevard.

—A long list of changes in the Code of the City of Colorado Springs concerning licenses and permits.

—An emergency appropriation of $4.700 to the Patty Jewett Golf Budget to pay for curbs and gutters in the area and emergency building maintenance funds.

—A resolution authorizing the City Clerk - Treasurer to invest $20.000 of Cemetery Endowment Funds in F.H.A. Insured Mortgages or U.S. Treasury Securities.

—An ordinance on first reading for annexation of 650 acres of land lying between U.S. 24 and Airport Road west of Peterson Field.

—A request by the Department of Inspections to condemn properties at 519 E. Bijou St., 2518 W. Bijou St., and 832 N. Pine.

Also approved were seven requests for zone changes. One request was tabled until the next meeting of council.

Widefield to Try Again For Recreation Inclusion

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

If there had been another pro-inclusion vote and the election was certified, Widefield and most of School District 3 would have been taken into the Security park and recreation district.

Widefield residents made plans on the spot to gather signatures of 15 per cent of the registered voters of their unincorporated area. This could start machinery for another election within about 60 days, advised Lawrence Addy, attorney for the park board.

Members of the park board declined to set up another election themselves. "There is no question that the board can institue another election," Addy said. "I think that's a political question rather than a legal one."

Most of the citizens at the meeting were afraid that the board would enforce its April 25 decision to establish non-resident fees for Widefield if voters did not okay inclusion.

Board members did, but residents were relieved when the board voted to charge not more than $20 a family for participation in the park district's summer recreation program. Members of the board explained that they put a ceiling on fees for the benefit of large families. Also to prevent disruption of the summer programs, especially baseball leagues. Fees jumped from $1 to $10 a participant.

The recreation program, now in its second week, involves approximately 600 youngsters outside park district boundaries, Paul Morris, superintendent, calculated.

Before the action amending fees, a Widefield housewife said:

"As a mother of six I'm going to have to drop my children. I'd still vote for inclusion."

The canvass of the election ordered by the board last Thursday was not announced. Addy reported that he was advised by persons in the state attorney general's office that the board was not empowered to canvass.

As soon as petitions are drawn up, the Widefield parents announced they would start gathering signatures.

Residents Lose Last Ditch Effort to Block Building

A last ditch effort by residents living near Lelaray Street to block a proposed apartment building there failed in City Council Tuesday.

An ordinance granting a zone change which would permit the apartment building to go in was up for second reading. After listening again to testimony of residents and to their attorney, Donald E. LaMora, council voted six to two to approve the change.

Voting no, as they did at last council meeting when the ordinance was up for first reading, were Mrs. Betty Krouse and William S. Roe.

Mrs. Krause tried to block the measure by moving that it be defeated. The vote was the same against her motion.

LaMora told council that 83 persons in the immediate area had signed a petition opposing the zone change. The apartment building is proposed for the 2000-2200 blocks of Lelaray Street.

He said that because of the rise of the building, residents would lose their privacy. He said the windows of the apartment will look directly into the bedrooms and kitchens of his clients. He said the building would also destroy their view.

LaMora also said that the proposed building is hurting property values and residents find they cannot sell their homes.

Bob Torrence, 2110 Mt. Vernon Ave., whose backyard will face onto the rear of the apartments, said that he has tried to sell his house but when people find out that an apartment house will be going up, "they become disinterested."

Harold Harmon, 2012 Mt. Vernon Ave., told the council that he didn't want a busy street behind his house as well as in front of it.

A third resident, Elmer Miles, 2102 Mt. Vernon, said the new building would eliminate privacy and said that it has hurt the value of his property. Miles said that he had been offered $21.000 for his home but when the prospective buyers learned about the apartment house, the price dropped to $18,000.

Similar protests were made at prior council hearings. The Panning Commission listened to the protests and denied the zone change from single family residential to multi-family residential.

The action was appealed to council and councilmen elected by a vote of six to two to reverse the commission decision.

Councilmen turned over an Air Force proposal to lease-purchase the Municipal Terminal Building at Peterson Field to the city attorney for study. He is expected to report back within 30 days.

Details weren't announced. Under the proposed agreement, the Air Force would lease the terminal with an option to buy.

If council moves ahead and accepts the proposal, it will open the door for the long-talked about new terminal which will probably be erected to the west of the airport.

Council annexed the Monument Valley Addition which is being developed by the Holland Dairy Farm Co., H. B. Daniels and others. The land lies between the Monument Valley Freeway and Monument Creek.

The preliminary plat of the 60.1 acre Crestmoor Park Subdivision was approved and council elected to provide water to the area despite the fact that not all of the sewer lines will be connected to the city's system.

Utilities Director Ray D. Nixon said it would cost the developers approximately $9.000 to hook onto the city's lines and about $2.000 to attach to the North Suburban system. Council approved the action with the stipulation that part of the new homes be hooked onto the city's lines.

Bennett Fails in Attempt To Halt City Fire Service

City Council was told Tuesday that the Colorado Springs Fire Department is spread too thinly and cannot provide adequate fire protection services to industries in the Northeast suburban areas.

Attorney John Bennett made the statements in an attempt to prevent council from approving new contracts for fire service with Timkin Roller Bearing Co., Schneebeck Industries, Alexander Film Co. and Aircraft Mechanics Inc.

He failed and despite objections from another attorney council raised the price of the service to two mills per year plus approximately $100 an hour for use of equipment in event of fire.

Bennett, who appeared for the North Suburban Fire District, said that the district was better equipped and in a better position to provide the fire protection.

He said that the organization was not a volunteer fire department in any sense of the word. He said the district owns and maintains expensive fire fighting equipment, has erected a fire station and has the station manned full-time by salaried employes.

He pointed to the terms of the contract between the city and industries which states that city firemen will answer the call only if they are able to. This means that if they are needed to fight a fire in the city, they will not go to the aid of the industries.

Bennett said that the North Surburban Firemen can have trucks and men at the scene of a fire in that area within five minutes. He said the department by virtue of contracts with other industries, is geared to fight fires in such plants.

The attorney charged that some buildings and plants could be destroyed by fire because of the confusion of people in not knowing which department has jurisdiction.

Bennett said North Surburban could handle just about any fire in that area. If they needed help they can get it from Colorado Springs, the Air Force Academy and other departments with which it has mutual aid agreements.

He charged that the city's contract with the industries is working a financial hardship on the fire district and on residents. If the industries aligned with North Surburban, he said, the mill levy in that area would be reduced.

Attorney Brian Mullet, appearing for Aircraft Mechanics, asked that the council not increase the mill levy in the contract. He pointed out that other industries outside the city such as Hewlett Packard pay a flat rate of $250 a year plus the hourly rental for fire protection.

He said that Aircraft Mechanics is treated as a third class citizen but must pay first class rates.

Attorney William Haney, appearing for Timkin, said his firm was satisfied with the contract and asked only that it be renewed for a five year term rather than one or two years. He said his firm, on the mill basis, pays about $600 a year to the city.

Council renewed the contract at the increased rate for a two-year period.

Pope Ponders Issues of Birth Control

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI said today that the Roman Catholic Church is studying the birth control problem in the light of new developments. But he said church bans on contraceptives remained valid for the present.

It seemed clear that he was speaking of contraceptive pills, although he did not mention them specifically.

The Roman Catholic pontiff discussed birth control in a general speech on church and world affairs to a group of cardinals.

His words came amid growing discussion among Roman Catholics about the use of contraceptive pills. There have been suggestions that they might be used to regulate the menstrual cycle so the rhythm method could be used with greater precision. The Church rejects contraceptive devices but permits the rhythm system.

Pope Paul said he hoped the studies would soon be concluded.

"But let us say frankly," he said, "that we have not yet sufficient reasons to consider overcome, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection."

Pius in a 1958 speech said pills should not be used to prevent pregnancy. But he added that they could be used to check uterine ailments if they were prescribed by a doctor without the intention of preventing pregnancy.

Pope Paul's references to Pope Pius' pronouncement, to new developments in the birth control field and his emphasis on birth control at this time in a general speech made clear that he was speaking of the pills.

After reviewing the first year of his pontificate, he said the future was "full of formidable problems and grave events for us." But he said he would speak "only of one of these problems."

"The problem, everyone speaks of it, is that of the so-alled control of births; that the increase of populations on one side, and of family morality on the other. It is an extremely grave problem. It touches the sources of human life. It touches the sentiments and the interests nearest to the experience of man and woman. It is a problem extremely complex and delicate," he said.

"The Church recognizes its multiple aspects, that is to say its multiple competences, among which certainly the most important are those of married couples, of their liberty, of their conscience, of their love, and of their duty.

"But the Church must also affirm its duty, that of the law of God, interpreted, taught, favored and defended by it. The Church will have to proclaim such a law of God in the light of scientific, social and psychological truths, which in these recent times have had new and most full studies and documentations.

"It will be necessary to watch closely both theoretic and practical developments of the question. And that is exactly what the Church is doing.

"The question is under study, as broadly and profoundly as possible, that is as gravely and honestly as is required in matters of this magnitude.

"It is under a study which, let us say, we hope to conclude soon with the collaboration of many illustrious experts. We will soon give the conclusions in the form which will be considered most adequate for the object dealt with the scope to pursue.

"But let us say frankly that we have not yet sufficient reasons to consider overcome, and therefore not obligatory, the rules given by Pope Pius XII in this connection. They must therefore be considered valid, at least for as long as we do not feel in conscience obliged to modify them. In a subject of such gravity, it will seem well that Catholics want to follow a single law, that authoritatively proposed by the Church. And it will seem for this reason opportune to recommend that no one for now takes upon himself to pronounce himself in terms different from the norms in force."

"Just when I had my phone number, auto license, and social security number memorized, along came zip code."

QUESTION: Will you please explain the Trinity and tell me where in the Bible it is mentioned? —D. C.

ANSWER: The teaching of the Trinity, or Father, Son and Holy Spirit as the Godhead is based upon New Testament utterances of our Lord Jesus Christ and the apostles.

True, the name "Trinity" does not appear in the Scriptures. But there is clear reference to three persons in the Godhead. For example, Jesus said in His commission to the disciples: "God ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." In other instances Jesus refers to the Trinity. In John 14:26, He says: "But the Comforter which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you."

In several of the benedictions in the epistles the three-foldness of God is mentioned. The doctrine of the Trinity is an outgrowth of Scriptural teaching.

D.C. WASH

By G. VAN DER HEUVEL

WASHINGTON — Lady Bird Johnson is one of the most practical of First Ladies, and that doesn't overlook Abigail Adams, who hung the family wash in the East Room. When Mrs. Johnson entered the White House she decided to leave it as it was. Jacqueline Kennedy had already restored its glory — in fact had given it a grandeur it had never enjoyed before. Mrs. Johnson felt she could not improve it, she could only use it to its best advantage.

A series of luncheons she holds once a month for "Women Doers" are also the outgrowth of a practical inspiration — to make the White House a spotlight for American women of achievement. President Johnson may have given women a place in the sun, but Lady Bird has offered them the greatest formum in the country for their ideas.

The ideas expounded to date have come from as wide backgrounds and as varied fields as Eleanor Pressly from NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center at Greenbelt, Md., and Kate Tuchman, principal of New York Public School 184; and sitting by listening and contributing ideas of their own have been women active in fields ranging from social work in Kansas City to starring on Broadway and at the Metropolitan Opera.

THE TO PREQUIREMENTS ARE IDEAS AND BREVITY

"The first thing we ask when someone suggests a woman to be invited to a luncheon," Liz Carpenter, Mrs. John'son press secretary said, "is one, is she articulate? and two: can she stick to seven minutes. We've found that the shortest speeches have sparked the most conversation on the subject."

"With 16 articulate women gathered in one room it could be pure babel, but it never is," another White House staffer marveled.

"Actually," Mrs. Carpenter admitted, "We did try having music played during the luncheons but we found it interfered with the conversation and the women would rather talk."

"At least we don't have to worry about a speaker canceling out," she added. "Anyone in the room could take over."

The've never put it to the test but they've come close. At least three times women have called to say their plane was delayed. Mrs. Tuchman, who was scheduled to speak, made it at the last moment with the aid of a White House car and a fast ride from the airport. Television star Arlene Francis, invited to the luncheon this week, had to give up in despair when she couldn't get a plane out of New York in time.

Those who make it, find that just being in the White House is a little overwhelming. The subduing effect usually wears off, however, shortly after they get out of the elevator and enter the family quarters on the third floor.

In the Yellow Oval Room, where John Adams (in his silver buckles) and Abigail entertained foreign visitors and where Woodrow Wilson proposed to Edith Galt, Mrs. Johnson's luncheon guests are served a small glass of sherry or orange juice and urged to try out Harry Truman's balcony.

Eventually they take their places around the table in the dining room that was once Margaret Truman's bedroom, and each course of Zephyr Wright's marvelous cookery is served on china of a different administration.

WHEN WOMEN DOERS MEET SOME MEN DOERS

Later Mrs. Johnson will take them on a tour of the Queen's Room, the Treaty Room and the Lincoln Bedroom, which she explains, was not the room Lincoln slept in but merely has his furniture. He actually slept in the room which Mrs. Johnson and the President now occupy and which carries a small plaque under the mantel saying this was the room occupied by John F. Kennedy and his wife Jacqueline from January, 1961 to November 1963.

Sometime during the luncheon the President has a habit of dropping in to say hello. He may have Defense Secretary Robert McNamara or Secretary of State Dean Rusk with him and he introduces each as "one of the men doers who have done all right."

Barbara Solomon, diector of women's archives at Radcliffe, briefed the luncheon guests on her efforts and has informed the White House that she has since received many contributions.

Mrs. Johnson asked Miss Pressly to "explain to us earth people what these space children tell her when they return," and Mrs. Tuchman talked on the problems of education in the poor and crowded urban areas and how it was possible, though difficult for teachers in these areas to teach and not just Baby-Sit."

STUDENTS GET FIRST-HAND HELP FOR A LIT TEST

It was at this luncheon that Lynda Bird and her roommate Warrie Lynn Smith, who has since returned to her home in Texas, got some exceptional preparation for an American Literature test at George Washington University. The quiz was expected to be on Katherine Anne Porter's short story, "Maria Concepcion."

The girls spotted Miss Porter among the guests and pumped her for an authoritative interpretation of the story. With disillusioning candor, she confided that it didn't mean as much as the literary experts think.

"Authors are usually accused of more symbolism than they put in," she told the girls.

The most recent luncheon speaker was Jane Jacobs, New York author and authority on the "asphalt jungle." Mrs. Jacobs stressed the problems of funds for building as against funds for maintenance. She pointed out that in one New York area funds could be made available to build a new park, but none could be allocated to maintain the old one.

She also pointed to the problem Negroes have in borrowing money to purchase a house. At this point she was briefly interrupted by Mrs. Mary Roebling, chairman of the board of the Trenton (N. J.) Trust Co. There were no such restrictions on Negroes of her city, Mrs. Roebling proudly claimed.

And so it goes when women of ideas meet.

Manned Gemini Flight Slated for Christmas

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The first manned Gemini space flight is now scheduled for about Christmas time this year.

Manned Spacecraft Center officials have been saying the two-man flight would be made "late this year" or "in the last quarter of the year."

At a news conference Monday, a center spokesman pinned it down to "late December."

AGRICULTURALISTS MEET

FORT COLLINS (UPI)—Registration and the initial presentation of technical papers occupied Monday's opening day activities of the American Society of Agricultural Engineer's annual meeting. The 800-member group will meet on the Colorado State University campus through Thursday.

Major Networks To Give Wide Vote Coverage

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — There'll be a hot time in the whole country as the three major television networks buckle down to the business of covering politics during the next five months.

All three have come to regard a presidential election year as a time to flex the muscles of their news departments, plunging into furious competition to get on camera first with a news item and in nailing bigwigs for interviews.

It is a time, too, when television experiments with some of the wondrous new electronic developments. This year's little marvel is expected to be a lightweight television camera which, free of the usual tie to an electrical outlet, can go anywhere a cameraman can walk — perhaps even into a smoke-filled room, hitherto out of sight and sound.

Each network is sending huge staffs and tons of equipment to the Republican convention in July and to the Democratic convention in August. Each plans to devote many hours of prime evening time to special programs, documentaries, analyses, explanations and interviews. There will even be politically orientated programs for children and for women.

A delicate job, the broadcaster's special headache, will be keeping a careful balance in time and television exposure among the candidates, between the major parties.

Under the Federal Communications Act, the networks, which are exceedingly careful about what is said on the air, are prohibited from censoring the statements of any candidate. Networks or stations may, however, refuse to permit non-candidates from making statements they believe to be libelous or defamatory.

During the campaign months, the networks will be carrying many campaign commercials. These are governed by rules different from those than control the usual toothpaste and cigarette sales ptiches.

One major difference is that the usual strict limitations on the amount of time (about 12 minutes) per hour which may not apply to political advertisements.

During the late summer and fall, many entertainment programs will be clipped short to make room for them—a situation which may not make viewers, already inundated with commercials, particularly happy.

Navigator Falls Six Miles to His Death

LEWISVILLE, Tex. (AP)—An Air Force navigator was sucked out of his B52 when a hatch door blew off Tuesday. He was not wearing a parachute and fell six miles to his death.

The body of Capt. Richard Carroll, 35, was located on a farm northwest of here during a search by a posse of state and county officers.

The plane returned to Sheppard Air Force Base at Wichita Falls, where Carroll's widow and four children live.

A spokesman at the base, Lt. L. M. Lomonico, said an accidental detonation of the navigator's ejection seat may have caused the mishap.

Flying squirrels glide from tree to tree using a parachute-like expansion of skin on the flanks, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

Another successful Bible School came to a close with a program at the Hanover Community Church Friday night. There were 18 boys and girls enrolled.

Mrs. Fannie Reble, Mrs. Nettie Huffmaster and Claudia Akers were teachers, with Virginia Reble, Jean Akers, Rosa Baker and Nancy Pease, helping. Our sincere appreciation goes to these who have given of their time and energy so faithfully.

A niece and nephew of Nettie Huffmaster spent the week with their cousins and attended the Bible School. A nephew of Atta Baker's also spent the week with the Earl Bakers and attended.

The foundation has been put in recently, for the rest rooms and storage at the Hanover School. It is about ready for the walls.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Vette and family drove to Colorado Springs after church Sunday and joined the Houtchens family at a picnic for Father's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Huffmaster and family joined Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Williams of Colorado Springs for a drive to the Sand Dunes, between Hooper and Moffit, to spend the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reble, David and Mark, of Colorado Springs, attended services at Hanover Church Sunday morning, and had dinner with the W. D. Rebles. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reble of Colorado Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chisman and Ramona and one of Ramona's cousins of Pueblo, spent Saturday evening with the Roy Chisman's. The weekend before, the Robert Chisman's were at the Chase Chisman's in Texas. Judy stayed down for a visit with her cousins. Where Chase lives had received 5.7 inches of rain last week, and also some hail which got their cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chisman and Dennis, and Myra Woods of Colorado Springs, had Sunday dinner with the Roy Chisman's and Grace Finch.

Patty Day spent last week in town helping at the Seventh Day Adventist Church Bible School. Frances also helped.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chisman and Dennis are leaving by train for the World's Fair July 13. They will go down to Washington and back to Chicago to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Otis of Homewood, Ill.

Patty Day was taken to the hospital with an attack of appendicitis during the last of the week. We hope she is soon better.

An invitation has been given to attend the showing of a Billy Graham film at the Fountain Junior High School, the evening of June 30. This is said to be a very good film.

Physical examinations for boys and girls who plan to attend Camp Iana, will be given at the Joe Gianesin's Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Taylor of Colorado Springs called at the Roy Chismans Friday.

Word was received recently that the former Mrs. Thomas Hill who lived in Hanover in homestead days, has passed away in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Skinner recently visited relatives in and around Colorado Springs. Mrs. Skinner is the former Leona McQueen. Both went to school at Hanover and lived here as young folks.

Safety Device May Reduce Auto Crashes

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Speed limits on Texas highways went up to 70 miles per hour last fall and an Austin engineer realized rear end collisions resulting when cars following a fast driver couldn't stop in time.

If the trailing drivers could have a split second more warning, reasoned Fred McNiel, they might be able to put on the brakes in time to avert an accordion-like pileup.

So McNiel, a planning specialist for the state parks system designed a safety device that turns on a rear warning light when the driver takes his foot off the gas pedal. He said this provides a brief but perhaps lifesaving advantage over the red rear lights which go on when the motorist hits the brake pedal.

Similar devices have proved unsuccessful, McNeil said, because in most instances they would keep warning lights on in slow-moving traffic, or flick on and off, confusing the driver of a following vehicle.

"That's because most of these devices have been tied into the car's accelerator linkage," he explained. "My mechanism is tripped by accelerator linkage returning to the idle position, but has no direct connection to linkage."

A feature of McNiel's warning device keeps it from giving a false alarm. It won't work unless the vehicle has been going at a pre-set rate of speed when the driver's foot is abruptly taken off the accelerator. And once the warning light flashes, the mechanism cannot be activated again until the driver speeds up.

McNiel said his patented device has been in use on a test vehicle driven more than 80,000 miles and has worked perfectly. He said the new design can be adapted to any make or model of vehicle, and costs about as much as installing a conventional turn indicator.

Barry's Dixie Influence Poses Vote Problem

By REX THOMAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The possibility that Sen. Barry Goldwater may attract large numbers of Southern Democrats as a candidate for president has created a problem for the unpledged elector movement in the South.

At least one states rights Democrat, Roy Harris of Augusta, Ga., has expressed fear that the Arizona Republican's vote against the civil rights bill may take some steam out of the free electors cause.

But Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, leader of the movement which he hopes will give the South the balance of power in the presidential election, discounts the Goldwater influence.

Wallace, a Democrat, is trying to line up enough presidential electors to keep either President Johnson or the GOP nominee from getting the required majority in the Electoral College.

In half a dozen states, he is striving to get the electors committed to him as a presidential candidate or left free to vote for someone else besides the major party nominee.

At the moment, he cannot be sure of any state except his own. The Democratic elector slate in Alabama has refused to promise its support to Johnson but is not committed to anyone else, including Wallace. The unpledged nominees, however, almost certainly will come out openly for the governor.

Wallace has run into opposition in some instances from Democratic leaders unwilling to go against the national party. To offset that, his backers have circulated petitions asking the voters to put his name on the ballot as a third party candidate.

Petitions are being passed around in North and South Carolina and probably will be later in Arkansas and Georgia. Similar efforts also may be made in Virginia, Texas and Florida.

Voters in Louisiana and Mississippi already are assured of a choice between elector tickets pledged to the Alabama governor and rival slates committed to Johnson.

If Wallace can gain control of the electoral votes of half a dozen Southern states, he will have a block of at least 53. In a close election, he figures that will be enough to keep either of the major party nominees from getting the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

Then, says the Alabama governor, the South, with the balance of power, could demand concessions on civil rights.

Goldwater sentiment in Georgia prompted Harris, leader of the unpledged elector drive in that state, to concede it may be difficult to convince some persons of the need for free electors.

Wallace had an answer for that:

"If Goldwater wins the Republican nomination he will have to embrace the party platform, and that's what is important rather than a single vote on the civil rights bill. And the Republican platform certainly will endorse the civil rights bill.

"If the Southern votes go to Goldwater we won't have any bargaining power. The only way we can exercise our power is to withhold our votes from both parties."

LADIES' SHAVER SALES RISE

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — A sharp rise in the sale of ladies' electric shavers was predicted here by a razor company executive.

In 1963, a record 1.5 million ladies' electric shavers were sold, said Jack J. Culberg, president of Schick Electric Inc. "This means that one out of every four shavers sold in this $90 million marketplace was a woman's model," he said. "This year, sales of ladies' shavers should approach the 2 million unit level.

RUEDI INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Reclamation Commissioner Floyd Dominy said Monday the low bidder for construction of Ruedi Dam on the Fryingpan River near Basalt, Colo., may try to up his $8.6 million bid by about $1.3 million. But Dominy said the firm, W. A. Smith Construction Co. of Kansas City, Kan., would have to prove its claim that it made a mistake in the original bid. Ruedi is a key storage unit in Colorado's $170 million Fryingpan-Arkansas Water Diversion Project.

Gordon H. Jacobs of Cornell University will assist the El Paso County Planning department in special studies this summer, according to Harold "Bud" Isham, county planning director.

Jacobs is a graduate civil engineer, receiving his bachelor of science,. civil engineering, and bachelor of arts degrees from Rutgers University.

At present Jacobs is working toward his masters degree in regional planning at Cornell. His work with the county planning department will not only assist the county but also help him acquaint himself with the planning programs of a rapidly growing metropolitan community, Isham said.

All information requested and handled by Jacobs will be held confidential and only the direct results of these studies will be public information, Isham stated.

Viet War Is Not Issue in Voting, Lodge Declares

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge said today he doesn't see how the war in Viet Nam can be an issue in the U.S. presidential campaign—"It involves the Eisenhower administration and the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and the Truman administration."

"In history when you've had a disaster," Lodge told newsmen, "then that becomes a political issue, even if the politicians do not do anything about it. But of course there's no outlook of that kind of time."

Lodge announced his resignation as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam Tuesday and said he was returning to the United States to help Gov. William W. Scranton's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

The front-runner for the nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Ariz., said in Washington that "the Johnson - McNamara program of indecision and vacillation has made it impossible for (Lodge) to carry out his ambassadorial functions properly and undoubtedly motivated his resignation."

But Lodge said he had been on excellent terms with President Johnson's administration. In an earlier statement Tuesday night, he said: "Viet Nam is on the right track and, with persistence, its freedom and independence will surely be achieved."

Lodge, Republican vice presidential candidate four years ago said he is returning only to help Scranton, governor of of Pennsylvania, and is "not a candidate at all."

"I am not going back at all in order to connive at anything for myself," he said. "I cannot be drafted and there are no hidden meanings."

The ambassador plans to leave Saigon Sunday, a year and a day after he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy.

A U.S. military source said the military command in Saigon expects intensification of the war against the Communist Viet Cong to result from the appointment of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to succeed Lodge.

However, some civilian American officials recently have expressed belief that insufficient emphasis is being given to political aspects of the war. The appointment of Taylor will add fuel to this argument.

"The Pentagon is not capable of building and executing the kind of politico - military war plan needed," said an American official with long experience in Viet Nam.

There was no immediate comment from South Viet Nam's premier, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who was on a field trip in the Mekong Delta.

Maj. Gen. Tran Thien Kiem, South Viet Nam's defense minister, said in Manila that he expects "very hot measures" against the Communists to result from Taylor's appointment.

WASHINGTON UPI) — Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey says Democrats could find the civil rights bill a liability in the November elections.

In a speech to the Woman's National Democratic Club Tuesday night, the Minnesota Democrat said the controversial measure could benefit Sen. Barry Goldwater if he wins the Republican presidential nomination.

Refugee Leader Wants to Face Castro in Battle

By TOM NOLAN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Cuban who once wanted to be nothing more than a loyal soldier of his government is now the military leader of a major new anti-Castro group.

He is tall, muscular Erneido Oliva, one of the five men heading the Cuban Representation in Exile which recently outlined its aims at a Washington meeting.

As a fellow Cuban talked, Oliva listened intently. At the words, "to work out its own battle plans to attain the liberty of Cuba," Oliva nodded vigorous assent. He will be responsible for those plans.

The young former officer has had some experience in the line already. He was second in command of Assault Brigade 2506 at the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion.

Oliva defected from Cuba to Miami on Aug. 18, 1960. It was not an easy decision, for he was a dedicated officer, a graduate of Managua (Cuba) Cadet School. He was then serving the Castro government as a general an architect," Oliva says. "But form throughout the island.

"I had always wanted to be an architect," Olica says. "But I couldn't afford the tuition, so I joined the army. After eight years of service, I was very dedicated. The thought of revolution never entered my head.

"I believed in the beginning that Fidel would be good for Cuba. But then he began his propaganda attack against the Americans. I was close to the United States all along. American aid furnished the 75 mm battery I was trained on.

"In other Latin-American countries there might have been hate for the 'Yanquis,' but there never was in Cuba until Fidel came.

"Then Fidel sold out to communism. I was bitterly disillusioned. As a lifelong Catholic, I could not support communism."

When Castro overthrew the Cuban dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista in January 1959, Oliva was in a military job overseas. Summoned to Havana, he met Castro for the first time. Oliva tells the following anecdote:

Chewing his cigar, Castro asked bluntly: "Do you know how Americans fight?"

"Yes," Oliva answered.

"Can we fight them now?"

"Impossible," the stunned Oliva shot back.

"Well," muttered Castro, "we will someday."

After defecting, Oliva was thoroughly questioned and tested by the Frente, the Cuban civilian exile organization. Accepted, he was shipped to Gautemala, training site of the brigade. He was named second in command to Jose Perez (Pepe) San Roman, now a second lieutenant at the U.S. Army's Language School in Monterey, Calif.

At the Bay of Pigs, Oliva's battalion of 370 men held the brigade's right flank for over 24 hours against 2,100 of Castro's troops supported by 20 Stalin tanks. One of Castro's doctors who later defected estimated that Oliva's force killed 500 of the enemy, wounded 1,000 others. They knocked out six of the tanks.

Oliva's losses: 15 killed, 40 wounded.

Following the defeat of the brigade, he spent 20 months in various Cuban prisons. He returned to Miami in December 1962, when the survivors were ransomed.

The other four men heading the Cuban Representation in Exile are lawyer Ernesto Freyre, accountant Aurelio Fernandez Diaz, union organizer Vicente Rubiera and law student Jorge Mas. They and Oliva were selected by a committee of exiles. Their names were presented for approval by mail to some 75,000 Cuban exiles. They were endorsed nearly unanimously.

One of Oliva's goals is to coordinate the actions of other exile groups, such as the Movement for Revolutionary Recuperation, led by Manuel Artime; the Revolutionary Junta, headed by Manuel Ray; and Alpha 66, led by Eloy Guiterrez Menoyo.

Oliva's group is well-financed. One of its supporters is Jose M. Bosch, head of the Bacardi Rum Company.

Asked if the group may be wary of U.S. aid following the withdrawal of air support at the Bay of Pigs by the late President Kennedy, Oliva indignantly asks:

"If we cannot trust the United States, who can we trust? The Russians?"

Looking at Hollywood

FRANK HIRES CAMERAMAN TO PRODUCE HIS MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD — Cameramen often know more about picture making than anybody on the set, so it's no surprise that Frank Sinatra tapped Garbo's favorite cinematographer, William Daniels, as producer for his company. They've worked together on 10 films. Daniels' first production will be "Community Property" starring Frank and Dean Martin. They're trying for Margaret Rutherford as the mother-in-law and Lee Remick a the wife.

While Sinatra's in Europe for "Von Ryan's Express" this fall, he'll do eight concerts in 15 days all over the continent. Then after finishing the picture here, opens at the Sands hotel in Las Vegas the day after Thanksgiving with Count Basie. Says Frank: "No chorus girls — just us. We expect to have fun."

George Peppard settled his difficulties with Metro, signed a new contract for one a year for three years. His first will be "Operation Crossbow," about the commandos, to be made in England and Italy. He'll be assisted by Alec Guinness and Sophia Loren.

Larry Hagman, here for a month before joining Otto Preminger in Honolulu, tells me his mother, Mary Martin, loves her home in Brazil so much she may turn farmer's wife and stay there a year. She now has 6,000 chickens and Larry said it wouldn't surprise him if she collected the eggs. Mary came home for the birth of daughter Heller's baby, but went back to Brazil. She's built a guest house, but the fare down is about $1,600 so it hasn't been occupied. I asked Larry if she'd forgotten she's an actress. "I don't think so," he said, "but this is something new for mother and I've never seen her happier."

"Lady in a Cage" was banned in Spain. As far as I'm concerned that's too good for it. The picture should be burned. In it Olivia de Haviland shatters forever the image she created as Melanie in "Gone with the Wind."

Charlie Pomerantz lost a daughter but gained a son Sunday when Barrie Lee married Edward Rissman. She already has a job teaching in San Francisco and he has two more years of med school.

Don De Fore also gains a son when Thomas Welch marries his daughter Penny on July 11. Tom's a law student; enters Northwestern this fall. They'll live in Chicago.

Van Johnson has had the sympathy of everyone in his battle for health, but he's doing irreparable damage to his daughter Schuyler by completely ignoring her and giving out publicity that he never hears from her. Whatever bitterness he feels toward her mother should not be visited on his child. She received nothing from him at Christmas, nor on her 16th birthday. Schuyler's a sophomore in high school.

Duke Wayne always wanted to travel on an aircraft carrier, and now gets his wish. He's en route to Honolulu — a five-day trip — aboard one of the big ones. Hope he'll be able to find his way to his quarters. When I was on the USS Forrestal in Naples with Bob Hope, my sailor-guide told me it took him three months to find his way back to his bunk.

Susan Oliver can't start Jerry Lewis' picture, "Disorderly Orderly," until she and nine other socialites play hostess for President Johnson in San Francisco.

Walt Disney arranged for Irene Dunne's visit to the World's Fair. Says she: "Don't go unless you have protection. The crowds are so great, it's hard to fight your way through. But it's wonderful to see so many people. I was there from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. and loved every second of it." Before going she made the graduation speech at St. Mary college in Xavier, Kan.

Cole Porter was due in Hollywood for the summer, but suffered a fracture in a fall and is hospitalized at Harkness Pavilion in New York.

Mrs. Ray Massey is home from the hospital after five days. Doctors are still puzzling over the diagnosis. Ray's been in Vancouver visiting his grandchildren.

SHE'S NO BETSY ROSS

LIVERMORE, Ky. (AP) — Miss Sandra Sowell, a teacher here, has discovered that sewing can be rather exasperating for some of her high school students.

One youngster was dejectedly ripping out a seam when she threw up her hands and told Miss Sowell: "Boy, if I was Betsy Ross, they still would be waiting for that flag."

Orthodox Dialogue Seen With Catholics

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Patriarch Athenagoras, the spiritual leader of world orthodoxy, has summoned heads of the Orthodox Churches for a third Pan-Orthodox Congress to begin preparing a "dialogue with the Roman Catholic Church," a member of the Greek Holy Synod reports.

The source said the Holy Synod, the 12-member ruling body of the Greek Orthodox Church, would convene Thursday to consider the patriarch's call for the meeting in September on the island of Rhodes.

The Greek Church boycotted the second Pan-Orthodox Congress last September.

Greeley Girl Heads State 4-H Group

Ann Williams, 16-year-old Greeley girl was named president of the Colorado 4-H organization during the group's annual conference at Colorado State University here Thursday.

Miss Williams has completed six years of 4-H club work and was a member of Weld County's dairy judging team which placed second in the state contest. Miss Williams was the high and was fourth in all classes of scoring judge in placing Holstein and Guernsey dairy cattle dairy judging.

Jill Gausman, 1118 12th Street Golden; Edwin Zink, 16, Route 1, Box 339, Durango; Carolyn Ehrlick, 17, 328 Ash Ave., La Junta; and Bob S. Thompson, 17, Beulah Star Route, Pueblo.

In addition, three State 4-H Conference judging events determined Colorado 4-H representation at several up coming regional and national team events.

The Weld county team topped the livestock judging contest with 2,006 points out of a possible 2,250. As a result, they will represent Colorado in livestock judging competition at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago this fall. Members of the team include Dean Hoffner, Ault; Bryan McDonald, Eaton; and Steve Greenwaldt, both of Greeley.

The top dairy judging team was from Boulder county. This team will represent the state at the International Dairy Cattle Vongress at Waterloo, Iowa, in October. The Boulder county team included Lyle Forsyth, Harleigh Peepler, Chuck Davies and Jack Haselbush, all of Longmont.

High home economics judging honors also went to a Boulder county team. This team was composed of Adele Roberts, Boulder; Marlene Leininger, Alice Flicker, and Kerby Thompson, all of Longmont. Their first-place rating wins them an educational trip to the National Western Stock Show next January.

More than 2,000 state 4-H members attended the 3-day conference on the CSU campus.

Malta Starts Morals Drive on Beaches

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — The topless swimsuit would not stand a chance on Malta. A police decency drive has banned bikinis and other two - piece bathing suits on Malta beaches.

Police Commissioner Vivian Degray also told his force: "kissing and cuddling in public squares and other places where they constitute a scandal are not to be tolerated."

DEEP OIL

NEW YOR K(UPI)—The average oil or gas well is about 4,000 feet deep and costs more than $62,000 to drill, the American Petroleum Institute reports.

ROYAL PLEASURE—Queen Elizabeth II registers delight while watching a polo match at Smith's Lawn, near Windsor, England, in which Prince Philip scored three goals to bring his team a 6-4 win.

BOTTLED UP

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States is using glass-packed products at the rate of 70.5 billion bottles and jars a year, reports the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute. Some of the containers, such as food jars, make only one trip. Others, like milk bottles, make many. Products packed in glass for consumer use range from foods and beverages to drugs, cosmetics and household chemicals.

Indy Veterans Boast CDR 250-Mile Race

Three Indianapolis "500" veterans head the list of drivers competing for $16,000 in prize money during the inaugural running of the 250-mile National Championship Late Model Stock Car race slated Sunday at Continental Divide Raceways.

Located one mile south of Castle Rock just off U. S. Highway 85-87, the Continental Divide Raceways oval will be the scene of rugged competition Sunday afternoon when top flight drivers from all over the country converge on the 2.8 mile Grand Prix course. The race is scheduled to start at 1 p.m.

According to promoter John Rostek, the Continental 250 will draw at least three Indianapolis "500" veterans including the 1963 winner Parnelli Jones, Roger Ward, and Troy Ruttman. This is the first time in the history of Rocky Mouniain Empire racing that "500" winners have raced in United States Auto Club (USAC) sanctioned competition.

In addition to the three above "500" winners, A. J. Foyt who captured the Memorial Day indurance run at Indianapolis this year, is scheduled to compete in the Continental 250. But the Houston leadfoot hasn't confirmed whether or not he'll race Sunday at Continental Divide.

Other Indy veterans expected to race in the 250-mile race are Len Sutton, Jim Hurtubise and Bill Cheesbourg.

Racing fans will have an opportunity to see Jones in action within a week's period as the Torrance, Calif., speedster is scheduled to compete in both the Continental 250-mile race and the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb the following Saturday, July 4.

Jones won the stock car division last year when he raced up massive 14,110 Pikes Peak in record breaking time. Jones will bring two racing stock cars to Colorado Springs this weekend. He will race one in Sunday's 250-mile event and the other in the Hill Climb. Jones' will be wheeling a 1964 Mercury in the Continental 250.

Form the stock car circuit will be Don White and Norm Nelson, two former national stock car champions. White is the defending champion and Nelson captured the title two years ago.

Jones was leading the stock car drivers in the year's standings with Jim Hurtubise, another Indy veteran who is scheduled to compete in Sunday's 250-mile race. Nelson, White, Ward and Foyt among the top 10 in stock car racing circles. The first USAC race this year was won by Hurtubise in a Plymouth at Langhorne, Pa., while Foyt won his fifth straight 100-mile national championship race at Langhorne in his new Sheraton-Thompson dirt track car. Foyt won the race which is set up for Indianapolis cars and drivers last weekend.

Time trials for the Continental 250 will start at 11 a.m. and the race will begin at promptly 1 p.m. Advance tickets for the Sunday race at Continental Divide Raceways may be purchased at either Blick's Sporting Goods Store or at the Underpass Texaco service station in Colorado Springs. Ticket prices are $2.50 for general admission and $3 for reserved section seats.

Three Locals Add Entries To Hill Climb

Racing fans attending the 42nd annual Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb on July 4th were assured a less congested trip down the Pikes Peak road when Hill Climb and law enforcement officials met Tuesday to iron out the problems.

In the past, the descent from Pikes Peak after the race has caused a traffic bottleneck and required hours from the summit to Cascade.

Hill Climb officials, in an effort to eliminate this problem, have decided to start the motorcade of passenger cars down Pikes Peak immediately after the last driver in the Hill Climb race reaches the summit. In the past, traffic was held up for an official's car which declared the race was over and started the descent. This year the Hill Climb officials will clear the road via radio and start the passenger cars down Pikes Peak.

In addition, the law enforcement officials established that there will be one lane of traffic coming down the Hill from the toll gate to U.S. Highway 24 (Ute Pass). The Manitou Springs police department agreed to turn off their electric traffic lights and have these streets manned by police officers. This will speed up the descent.

A trio of local leadfoots — Nick Sanborn Jr., former two-time stock car champion from Cascade, Dick Belitzer and Larry Doolen of Colorado Springs — added their names to the growing list of drivers slated to compete in the "richest race in the world per mile" on July 4. The race is slated to start at 11 a.m.

Already set for the 12.42 mile race up the 14,110 foot mountain are defending sports car champion Ak Miller and the 1963 stock car victor Parnelli Jones, woh also won the 1963 Indianapolis 500 - miler. Both set race records in scoring their Independance Day victories of a year ago.

Sanborn is one of three double stock car victors in Hill Climb history. Hiw wins came in 1958 and '59. The other double winners were the Unsers, Louis J., and his twin, the late Jerry. Louis J. will be a teammate of Jones this year and will be facing Nick's twin, Frank.

A Manitou Springs high school graduate, Sanborn has been the most consistent money maker in stocks, but this time he has entered the sports car division. However, should a stock car ride come up, he would drive both in the richest race per mile in the world today.

Sanborn has been up the "Hill" eight times in a stock car. He was first twice; second three times; fourth and fifth once each. His only did not finish came in 1961, resulting from a restart caused by his brother Frank's flip.

Belitzer is once again entering the smallest sport car in the class. He will again be driving his Triumph TR3 with its 2200cc motor. It is more modified since its ninth place finish of last year. The car is sponsored by the Empire Tire Co.

He has been driving sports cars for the past eight years. Belitzer's record shows he has never finished below third in class. He does his own mechanical work.

Doolen will again be the biggest driver in the Hill Climb. The Manitou Springs business executive stands 6-8 and weighs 285 pounds. The 26 - year - old Palmer High School and Denver University graduate finished fourth last year in his Hill Climb debut.

ALAIMO NAMED COACH

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (UPI)— James G. Alaimo, former all-Ivy League center and the fourth leading basketball scorer in Brown University history, Thursday was named head basketball coach at Middlebury College.

Alaimo, who replaces Errki W. Mackey, will also coach freshman soccer and lacrosse. The Panther hoopsters won only four games in the past two seasons.

Culp Rejoins Starting Rotation To Preserve Phillies League Lead

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ray Culp has pitched his way back into the Philadelphia Phillies' starting rotation. All it took was a near replica of teammate Jim Bunning's perfect game.

A first inning base on balls and Len Gabrielson's sixth inning single came between Culp and perfection, attained two days earlier by Bunning, as the 22-year-old right-hander blanked Chicago 9-0 in the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday night.

No other Cub reached base against Culp, whose early season troubles cost him a frontline job on Gene Mauch's leaded pitching staff.

Mauch, thoroughly impressed after Culp's effort, announced that the National League-leading Phils will go with five starters henceforth.

"With Bunning, (Dennis) Bennett, (Art) Mahaffey and (Chris) Short working so well," the manager said, "we just haven't been able to give Ray enough work. The doubleheaders enabled us to use him more. Now he's pitching like he did last year."

Culp, a $100,000 bonus baby five years ago, won 14 games in 1963, his rookie season, and led Philadelphia pitchers with 176 strikeouts. He reposted with a sore arm this spring, dropped five of six decisions and found himself in the bullpen.

But three victories—including the one-hitter—and two complete games in his last three appearances have vaulted the young Texan back into the Phils' pennant plan.

The second game victory gave the Phils a split of the twi-nighter. Chicago took the opener 2-0 on Dick Ellsworth's five-hitter.

Second place San Francisco divided with Cincinnati, winning 4-0 before bowing 5-4 in 11 innings. Pittsburgh defeated New York 5-1; Milwakuee beat Los Angeles 5-2 and St. Louis nipped Houston 5-4.

Culp said after the game he relied mainly on his fastball against the Cub hitters.

"I had arm trouble late last year and early this season because I threw too much breaking stuff," he recalled.

He said Gabrielson's hit, a golfed shot off a low fast ball, surprised him. "I jammed him down and in, and he sliced it to right."

Culp wasn't ecstatic about his performance. "We're on top and I'm not a winning pitcher. If I was 10-5 with this club I'd have something to be happy about."

Phillie hitters were beaming after their 17-hit supporting role in the second game victory. Wes Covington homered. Richie Allen cracked three doubles and John Hernnstein had four hits, including a pair of doubles.

The opener was another story. Ellsworth breezed to his ninth victory in 15 decisions. Ernie Banks singled home one run and rookie Billy Ott doubled in the other.

Marty Keough' slead-off homer in the 11th inning earned Cincinnati a split with San Francisco and kept the Giants 1½ games behind Philadelphia. Jim Hart's eighth inning homer, his second of the game, had pulled the Giants even.

Juan Marichal scattered seven singles in the opener and ran his record to 9-3. The Giants scored all their runs in the third inning. Duke Snider and Jose Pagan singling home two each.

Dick Schofield drove in four runs, three on a homer, and Vern Law pitched his fourth straight victory as the Pirates handed the Mets their 11th loss in 12 games.

Milwaukee snapped a seven-game losing string, rallying for three runs in the seventh on doubles by Hank Aaron and Felipe Alou and singles by Lee Maye and Joe Torre, to overtake the Dodgers. Frank Howard hit his 16th homer for Los Angeles and Ed Mathews his sixth for the Braves.

Rusty Staub's second error of the seventh inning allowed Tim McCarver to score St. Louis' winning run after John Bateman's homer had lifted the Colts into a 4-4 tie in the top of the inning.

SUCCESSFUL FLOP—Willie Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers flops backward to first base, grimacing from the force of a tag attempt by Felipe Alou of the Milwaukee Braves Tuesday night after a pickoff attempt by Dan Schneider. Davis beat the throw but the Braves beat the Dodgers, 5-2, at County Stadium in Milwaukee. (AP Wirephoto)

New Breed of Coach

Last week's NCAA Tournament at the Broadmoor provided fresh evidence that the public image of the college coach is erroneous — at leasst in some instances. Unlike the more tortured members of the fraternity, collegiate golf instructors project a facade of complete tranquility that prevails under the most adverse conditions.

This non-conformity is difficult for the average fan to accept. The usual mental picture of the college coach would not ser evas a very successful recommendation for long-term life insurance. Spectators have been educated to accept the idea that coaches subsist on milk, tranquilizers, and fingernails. Fans figure any supliment to this diet would probably be liquid in nature and stimulating in effect.

Such speculation has a basis in some areas of sport. Today's dapper young football coach usually appears on the sidelines looking like a model for a "New Yorker" advertisement. That's prior to the kickoff. After the first couple of tackles most of them can disrobe faster than Gypsy Rose Lee.

Basketball coaches are usually well-pressed for the opening tip, but catch one in the dressing room after a couple of overtimes and you may mistake him for a pile of dirty laundry.

A sport rapidly gaining in popularity among fans is that of attending wrestling matches — to watch the coaches. At these events, action on the mat is secondary. While the grapplers attend to their duties of attempting to manufacture human pretzels, coaches on the sidelines frequently appear to be trying to slip a hammerlock on the "Invisible Man." If you have never seen a half-nelson applied to a folding chair, check the coaching demonstration at a wrestling match sometime.

The golf coach is a breed peculiar to the fraternity. These gentlemen were as common as 300 yard drives at the Broadmoor last week. With a few exceptions, however, they were about as conspicuous as one more piece of shrubbery. During a long week of exciting performances, displays of emotion by the coaches were confined to an occasional yawn.

The chief exponent of this decorum is Dave Williams, who had nothing more to be excited about than a Houston team which won its seventh national title in nine years. During the majority of the week, Williams exercised by taking an occasional stroll from the clubhouse lobby to check the scoreboard on the clubhouse porch, a distance that can be extended to around 30 yards by starting from the far side of the lobby.

This actually is a tactical maneuver by the highly-successful Houston coach. In contrast to Oklahoma State's Labron Harris, Williams does not feel that it helps his quintet for him to make appearances on the course while the team play is in progress. He prefers to direct the strategy from a central location — and don't think there isn't strategy involved in winning one of these tournaments.

"We have done nothing but point for this tournament since our season started," Williams said following the Cougars' victory. "We play no match tournaments during the regular season and we come here with our athletes believing that the team title is much more important than the individual championship."

Houston and Oklahoma State finished the opening day in a first place tie, but early during the second round two Cougars came in with low scores, while one of the Cowboy stars soared to a 77. I asked Williams if the word went out from the clubhouse at that point for his remaining three players to start shooting for the middle of the greens.

"We let each of our boys judge how he should play," the Houston coach said in one of his rare moments of elusiveness. "But they all knew what was going on."

When star sophomore Marty Fleckman began sweeping through the match play bracket later in the week, Williams began appearing on the course,

DAVE WILLIAMS
Relax and Win

but he was visable only for brief periods. Occasionally he would materialize from behind a tree to watch a crucial shot. Even though Fleckman was involved in the rash of close matches before being eliminated in the semi-finals, Williams' nerves remained in hiding. If he had been any more relaxed, he would have required transportation around the course on a cot.

Williams and Harris have dominated the college golf scene for some years, but there presently is a new challenger rising. Stan Woods of Southern California has all the necessary equipment, including outstanding players, plus a fantastic relaxation potential.

Woods could not be termed inconspicuous last week — because this California gentlemen is so huge he could put Sonny Liston in his hip pocket and hardly make a bulge. At 6-3 and somewhere around 200 pounds, give or take a few each day, Stan's nature is so completely docile that his physical proportions become less terrifying with each word.

This new rivalry should prove interesting because Woods is the recently-elected president of the golf coaches association and he is also an outspoken opponent of switching the format of the NCAA Tournament from its present structure to 72 holes of medal stroking. Williams introduced the idea, which would eliminate the match play tourney for individual honors and place primary interest on the battle for team honors.

Woods told me he plans to use his weight to block the plan — a prospect I found rather frightening until he explained that he meant the weight of his office.

"The majority of schools do not have the scholarships to build a team such as Houston's," the USC coach said. "If the entire emphasis is switched to team play, no one can compete with Houston and Oklahoma State and the tournament will be ruined."

That's the nature of an administrative strife now boiling below the surface of the placid waters of NCAA golf. It's one that would seem to demand a few stormy committee sessions, but if fireworks are in order they'll probably have to call in a few basketball or wrestling coaches to provide them.

Golf coaches may disagree, but they prefer to do so in a monotone. Such a trend doesn't make for spectaculars, but these days it appears to be promoting some mighty fine golf.

Wimbledon Organizers To Try for Open Tennis

By JOHN GALE
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Britain will make a determined move next month to bring the great names of professional tennis back to Wimbledon's green and rain-washed turf.

As the organizers of the 78th All-England championships surveyed the ruins of Tuesday's rain-wrecked session, they enthused over their recall-the-stars scheme which will be presented July 8 to the International Lawn Tennis Federation meeting in Vienna.

If approved, it could mean the return to major tournaments of such past masters as Lew Hoad, Ken Rosewall, Tony Trabert and Alex Olmedo. All are now in the ranks of the paid players.

Said Basil Reay, secretary of the British Lawn Tennis Association:

"We will make a hard effort to get the British plan through. It will be a terrific disappointment for Britain if we can't get an open Wimbledon next year though I hasten to add it is not the end of the world."

The British plan proposes that tennis countries should be given sanction to stage experimental open tournaments during 1965-66. Alternatively, it says that whatever other countries do, Wimbledon should be allowed to go it alone with the experiment during the two-year period.

The British plan needs two-thirds of the Vienna vote for approval. It seems unlikely to be forthcoming.

The Australian Association already has said it will vote against the British proposals. The United States is expected to do likewise.

Tuesday's watery Wimbledon, lasted just long enough to demonstrate again the rising standard of Soviet tennis.

Anna Dmitrieva, 23-year-old Russian girl, took the first set 6-4in her first round match against Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Tex., winner of the 1962 Wimbledon title. The match was called off with the Russian leading 2-1 in the second set after the slippery court surface had spilled Mrs. Susman five times.

Only a dozen contests were completed—less than one sixth of the program. But there was time enough for the two top seeds, Margaret Smith and Maria Bueno, to romp through their opening assignments.

Miss Smith, from Australia, crushed Annette Van Zyl of South Africa 6-2, 6-1. Brazil's Miss Bueno produced the full flow of her royal strokes to sweep by Carol Prosen of Orlando, Fla., 6-0, 6-3.

The opposition in both matches was only moderate but both winners showed the sort of form that Wimbledon fans would like to see in the final. In fact, there could be no more popular final than one pitting the graceful senorita against the tall and powerful girl from Down Under.

Willie Smith Proves Devil As Outfielder for Angels

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Hollywood made the movie, "Angels in the Outfield," they weren't talking about Willie Smith. All of the Angels, however, are talking about him now.

The movie was a story of the heavenly kind of angels in the outfield of the Pittsburgh Pirates. But Smith, a Los Angeles Angel, has been a devil at bat.

The pitcher turned outfielder lashed two singles and a two-run homer Tuesday night, sparking Los Angeles to a 2-0 triumph over Washington. The victory was the seventh straight for the Angels, equalling the longest winning streak in the majors this season.

It also marked the second consecutive night Smith won games with his bat. His pinch-hit single the night before drove in the tie-breaking run in a 5-2 victory over the Senators.

The 25-year-old lefty was a pitcher until Manager Bill Rigney decided Smith deserved a trial as a hitter. Rigney now believes there's never been anyone more deserving.

Smith reached the majors last year with Detroit. He pitched in 11 games, gaining a 1-0 record and a 4.50 earned run average. The Angels acquired him April 29 in a trade for Julio Navarro.

As a southpaw hurler this season, Smith has a poor 1-4 record in 14 relief appearances and one start but has a respectable 2.81 ERA.

When Smith was inserted into the line-up for his hitting, Rigney didn't fool around. The manager placed him in right field and made him the No. 4 hitter. Smith's performance Tuesday night rocketed his average 40 points to .319. He has two home runs and 10 runs batted in for 47 times at bat.

His pinch hitting record is even more amazing. He has seven hits in 14 chances, with five of the hits coming in his last seven tries.

That's pretty heavenly in Rigney's book.

Elsewhere in the AL Tuesday night, Baltimore nipped New York 9-8, Chicago blanked Boston 2-0, Minnesota whipped Cleveland 6-2 and Detroit trampled Kansas City 9-3 after losing 2-1.

Smith's homer in the eighth inning broke up a scoreless pitching duel between the Angels' Dean Chance and Bennie Daniels. Chance wound up tossing a four-hitter for his fifth victory against three defeats. The shutout reduced his ERA to 1.91.

The Yankees appeared well on their way to an easy victory when the Orioles struck for seven runs after two were out in the eighth. Pinch hitter Charley Lau ignited the comeback with a single and climaxed it with a run-scoring double.

Brooks Robinson and Willie Kirkland each singled home two runs in the inning. When it was all over, Baltimore was in first place one-half game ahead of New York. Elston Howard, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris homered for the losers.

Fred Talbot scattered eight hits for the White Sox. Pete Ward homered, and J. C. Martin knocked in Chicago's second run with a double in the sixth inning.

Harmon Killebrew smashed his 23rd homer in the Twins' triumph. Jim Kaat hurled a five-hitter, losing a shutout in the ninth on Bob Chance's two-run single. Kaat singled home one of Minnesota's three runs in the second.

The Tigers salvaged a split of their doubleheader with the Athletics behind the hitting of Dick MAuliffe and Al Kaline. McAuliffe connected for a grand slam homer in the eighth while Kaline batted in three runs, two with a single in the second.

Rocky Colavito's two-run single in the fifth inning won the first game for Kansas City. His hit was only the second off Joe Sparma, who was making his first major league appearance.

Jack Nicklaus Bones Up For Cleveland Open Play

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP)—The big money golf tourists are beginning to bunch up, but youthful Jack Nicklaus is taking steps to stay on top.

The 24-year-old Columbus star who paces the pack with $51,426 despite picking up only $400 in last week's National Open, has an eye on the $20,000 top prize in the $110,000 Cleveland Open, which starts its four-day, 72-hole medal-play grind Thursday.

While runner-up Arnold Palmer ($49,651) and fourth-place Tony Lema ($40,561) passed up practice rounds Tuesday over the 6,821-yard, par-71 municipal layout — Nicklaus measured every inch of it.

Instead of cooking up a skin game with some of the other competitors, Nicklaus went out alone with only his caddy tagging along. He kept no score, but he had a score card full of notes when he came in.

Also missing the practice jaunt were Ken Venturi, last week's surprise winner of the National Open, and classy Dow Finsterwald. The temperature was in the 90s, and tornado warnings were flying to discourage much of the talented field of 149 professionals and 10 amateurs.

Fifty of the pros had a picnic today as each teamed with three amateurs in a best-ball handicap round with $10,000 going to the play-for-pay group. The professionals paid no entry fee, but each of the 150 amateurs tossed $200 into the pot.

The $200 gave each amateur, in addition to the 18-hole jaunt with a top-ranked pro, six tickets and a parking sticker for the remainder of the tournament.

The professional shooting today's best round was due for a $1,000 prize and the pro in the leading foursome had an $800 payoff on tap. So one of them could possibly pick up $1,800.

Sertoma Posts Third Win In Junior Men's League

Sertoma notched its third straight victory and the Village Inn Colts stayed close behind with their second win in a row in a Junior Men's League baseball doubleheader Tuesday night at Memorial Field.

The Sertoma Club defeated the Lucas Sporting Goods Beavers 6-3 and the Colts downed the Mets 11-3.

Righthander Bob Lynn had a single and a double, scored twice, and scattered eight Beaver hits to pitch and bat the Sertoma Club to their victory.

Sertoma scored the deciding runs in the seventh inning after two were out on a single by short-stop Mike Biernacki, a walk, a single by second-baseman Larry Taylor and an error.

Lynn's double, a sacrifice fly, walk and a dropped fly ball in the outfield gave Sertoma two runs in the fifth which erased a 2-1 Beaver lead.

Leftfielder Joe Reeser had three singles in four appearances at the plate for the Beavers.

The Colts overpowered the Mets with a 12-hit attack and Rick Ferguson and Lance Moore teamed up to pitch a two-hitter.

Second-baseman John Van Horn had two singles and a double and scored three runs to pace the Colt assault. The Colts used four singles, an error and three walks in a five-run third inning.

'Legion 'A' Twin Bill Set Tonight

Rotary and Sertoma renew their rivalry in the first game of an American Legion "A" doubleheader at Memorial Park tonight. The contest is scheduled to start at 6:30 with a second game matching the Elks and Lions following at 8:30.

Sertoma currently tops the standings in the local league with a 3-0 record but Rotary is a close second at 2-1. Rotary's only loss this season was to Sertoma by a 5-4 score the first time the two clubs met.

Sertoma coach Chris Talbott will likely use either Bob Kochis or Clay Chambers in the starting role tonight. The third member of the regular staff, Bob Torrie, blanked the Elks 4-0 on three hits Sunday. Rotary, which romped to a 13-4 over the Lions Sunday, has Phil Johnson well-rested for tonight's game.

The Elks and Lions have also met previously this season with the Elks winning 12-2.

Benardo's Nips Hogan, 6-4 In City Softball Feature

Winning pitcher Jack Richards' two-run home run in the seventh inning gave the Benny Benardo's nine a 6-4 win over Navajo Hogan Tuesday night in the second game of a City League softball doubleheader at Memorial Field.

Ent AFB trounced the DCA Mets 13-1 in the first tilt.

The second-place Benardo's crew used consecutive singles by Gene Fuller, Jim Daughterty and Larry Laxton a passed ball and a two-run homer by rightfielder Joe Sisneros to score four runs in the opening inning.

Benardo's saw Navajo Hogan storm back with three runs in the second frame, however, and one more in the fourth to tie the affair. Bob Geick singled home catcher Dan Wright with the tieing run. Three singles, a double by Archie Scott and an error accounted for the Hogans three second inning runs.

Jim Swilley and Bama Carden pitched a no-hit ball for the Ent crew who clinched matters with a nine-run first frame. Four singles, doubles by Dave Guittierrez and George Burris, a walk and four Met errors gave Ent their opening runs. The Mets scored their run on four straight walks in the first inning.

In the only Industrial League action Tuesday, Simms Supers took a protested decision from the Gazette Telegraph, 15-8, after scoring 10 runs in the opening inning. The protest was submitted in the first frame and an error-plagued contest followed which saw two players ejected from the game.

Tonight's schedule calls for four Industrial League tilts. AT and T will meet the Fire Department and the Gazette Telegraph will return to action in the nightcap against Telephone Company on field 3, while on field 4 Phil Long Ford will clash with Simms Super and City Utilities will tangle with the Denver Equipment Company.

Pirates Sign Pitching Brothers

SHARON, Conn. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates signed a pair of pitching brothers Tuesday.

Seventeen-year-old John Lamb of Sharon, who pitched the Housatonic regional high school team into the state Class B semifinals this year, received what was called a substantial bonus.

His 22-year-old brother, Art, was given his second contract with the Pirates organization. Art was first signed by Pittsburgh in 1959 but developed arm trouble after winning his first four games in the minors.

John will report to Salem, Va. of the Appalachian League. Art is going to Reno of the California League.

Two No-Hitters Pace YAL Lightweight Play

The Elks Club Lancers downed the Babe's Market Red Sox 14 - 7 and the Braves rocked the Vrooman Realty Angels 23 - 8 in a pair of Heavyweight League games Tuesday night at Monument Valley Park.

Fred Harris and Jim McPherson both pitched one-hitters to hurl the Sertoma Bears and Telephone Company Mets respectively to their wins at Audubon.

Dickie Perez' second home-run of the game tied the score in the last of the fifth and enabled the Dodgers to chalk up a win at Memorial Park.

HUNGRY AUTO? — The light colored Ford at right seems to be taking a big bite out of the auto at left in this smash-up from last weekend's racing at the Pikes Peak Speedway, east of Colorado Springs. The rear-end collision was one of the wrecks that featured the running at the local oval, including a seven-car tangle in the first race of the evening.

Local Stocks Have Big Smashup

A smashup involving seven cars featured the stock car races this past weekend at the Pikes Peak Speedway, located east of Colorado Springs just off Highway 24.

In what the track calls "a return to stock car racing in its original form," cars were strictly stock types with no "souped-up" engines, but regular street tires and no glass but safety equipped with roll bars, seat belts, etc.

The first race of the evening saw seven cars tangled in a mass of metal before the initial lap was completed. And the rest of the program followed this example with spin - outs and wrecks in nearly all the races.

As an added feature, there was a "Powder Puff" race with the girls trying their hand at the wheel. Eight cars entered this past week in what will be a weekly event.

Races are held each Saturday night with time trials slated for 7:30 p.m.

Last week's 30 - lap main event started with 16 cars and only 18 laps were finished before the race had to be stopped to remove one of the autos out of the fence. Only half the original field completed the entire race with Ed Milo of Lakeside in Denver and Ronnie McDowell of Pueblo sharing wins in the modified division.

'Mary Catchum' Puts Win Streak on Line at Pueblo

PUEBLO — Undefeated Mary Catchum, the Carl Pritchard greyhound that has taken over where her mother left off, risks her undefeated streak against an all-star field in Wednesday night's featured ninth race at Pueblo Greyhound Park.

Mary Catchum, whose mother I Will Catchum was a Grade A star in Pueblo five years ago, has won three straight in official starts plus both of her schooling efforts since arrival in Pueblo from Tucson.

Tonight she takes on a field including Omer L. Rawlings', Repton, winner of the Cloverleaf meet, and George S. Murphey's Sonic Sue, the dog that ran second to Mary Catchum on Saturday night. Repton still is looking for his first Pueblo win, having finished second and third in his two Pueblo outings.

The eighth race of the 11-event card also is a Grade A affair. Entries include J. Mamino's Amperex, John Kendall's greyhound from Mexico, Impala Red, and Mrs. P.H. Pursel's P.H.'s Peppy.

Carroll's Three-Hitter Clips Tacoma for Bears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pacific Coast League-leading Portland bounced back from a loss to last-place Dallas by sweeping a doubleheader with the Rangers Tuesday night 5-3 and 2-0.

The victories put the Beavers three games in front of their nearest competitors in the Western Division, the San Diego Padres, who beat Eastern Division-leading Arkansas 2-0.

In the first of the two seven-inning games at Dallas, the Rangers grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second on a triple by Don Taussig and a single by Ron Debus. Two-run rallies in the third and fourth and a homer by Ray Barker in the fifth gave Portland the game.

Jack Curtis went the distance for the Beavers in the first game, giving up eight hits. In the second, Steve Hargan hurled all the way for Portland, holding the Rangers to four hits. Wildness by Dallas pitcher Cliff Davis in the sixth gave the Beavers the second game. Davis filled the bases and then hit a batter and walked another to send in both Portland runs.

Arkansas' Joel Gibson dueled with Jim Coates for nine innings at San Diego and lost, yielding five hits to Coates' scattered four. Miles McWilliams doubled to send Chico Ruiz home with the Padres' first run in the first. Cesar Tovar homered in the eighth to give Coates a cushion.

Elsewhere, Indianapolis Bob Locker and Denver's Clay Carroll hurled winning three-hitters as the Indians beat Hawaii and the Bears beat Tacoma by 4-1 scores. Oklahoma City downed Seattle 7-5, and Spokane stopped Salt Lake City 6-4.

Locker went all the way against Hawaii as did Carroll against Tacoma. Indianapolis led from the beginning in its game ith the Giants, but Denver fell behind Tacoma 1-0 in the first and remained that way until the fifth, when Bear batters began to score.

Homers in the fifth and singles in the sixth produced a pair of three-run innings for Oklahoma City after Seattle had built a 3-0 lead. Ernie Fazio and Jim Beauchamp provided the homers.

Spokane exploded for six runs in the first inning against Salt Lake, and the Bees never caught up. Singles by Dick Nen, Lou Johnson, John Werhas and Lib Julian featured the early rally. Salt Lake pitcher Paul Jaeckel went to the showers during the inning.

Kauffman Gets Three Pins

NEW YORK (AP)—You don't have to be a distance runner to be a member of the wrestling team at Oregon State University but it sure does help.

Len Kauffman, who enters his senior year at the Eugene, school in September, was talking about the unusual combination Tuesday night after he registered three pins during the second day of the 75th annual National AAU freestyle championships at the World's Fair.

"A year ago I didn't place in this meet at all," said the 21-year old native of Lebanon, Ore., who is studying general science. "Now I am assured of being in the finals.

"And I must credit the improvement to the training program given to me by our coach, Dale Thomas.

"Every man on the squad must run two miles each morning. . .and against the clock. There is no loafing or easy pace.

"Then in the afternoon after about 90 minutes. It is unusual to have one long workout a day never mind two.

"I'm not complaining, though, and neither are any of the other boys. Mr. Thomas is dedicated and a real inspiration for us. No one minds working for a man like that."

Kauffman, who was disappointed with his third place finish in last March's NCAA championships at Cornell, scored his final pin Tuesday in the fourth round in 7:30 against Joe Ingarozza of the New York A.C.

Ron Clinton, another Winged Footer from the NYAC, was eliminated by the Webfooter in the fourth round in the afternoon as 326 Steve Combs of Chicago was the third round victim in 1:48.

One champ was crowned Tuesday night when Jim Raschke, a soldier stationed at West Point, was given the heavyweight title on the strength of a 4:47 pin over Bob Pickens of Chicago in the second round Monday.

Officials had to impose the Olympic rules which govern the competition to settle the outcome. Both boys went undefeated after their bout on Monday, and since the rules do not allow a repeat match, the result of the initial test stands.

Cassius Clay Cuts Short African Tour

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cassius Clay, who cut short his African "good will" tour because he was "too tired," relaxed in New York today and prepared for a meeting with Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammed Sunday.

"People have been mobbing me," Clay said on his return to the United States Tuesday night. "They've been killing me. I'm tired."

Clay said he was treated more like a politician than an athlete during his five-week tour of Ghana, Nigeria and the United Arab Republic.

"I hope I created the proper impression," Clay said. "I just wanted to show them that I'm a clean living person and a Muslim. I wanted to let them know they have thousands of brothers in America."

Clay said he plans to meet Muhummed Sunday afternoon at the 369th Armory in Harlem.

"I'm nervous every time I go around him," Clay said. "He's so big and so wise. It's like being next to God."

Prep Miler Star Runs Paper Route

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Jim Ryun, youngest miler ever to crack the four-minute mile, has many problems similar to other 17-year-old boys.

One of them is money for movies, hamburgers and other things a teen-ager needs cash for. He solves his problem like thousands of other youngsters across the country.

He says it's about the only job he's found that fits in with his strenous running schedule.

After delivering morning editions of the Wichita Eagle, Ryun heads for his high school track to run a few miles. After his afternoon delivery of the Wichita Beacon, he's back on the track for more running.

Bob Timmons, Ryun's coach, said recently the youngster runs 12 or more miles per day.

When young Ryun has to run in meets out of town—such as the recent Compton Calif. Relays where he posted a 3:59.0 mile—his father takes over the newspaper route.

Julie Heldman Is Top-Seeded

Offense Troubles All-America Teams

By MARVIN R. PIKE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The East and West teams in Saturday's All-America football game each have a problem that can be summed up in one word: Offense.

The East's pass-receivers haven't been able to hang on to the low, bullet passes of Miami's George Mira.

The West, armed with new plays, appeared to be slow in making them work.

Despite those problems, 57 of 60 of the nation's top collegiate player of 1963 chosen to perform in the fourth-annual game gave their all Tuesday in 1-hour, 45-minute workouts under a broiling sun that sent the temperature soaring to 92 degrees. None was affected by the heat.

Coach Pete Elliott of Illinois decided to work on the East's aerial game. He had Mira rolling out for passes to the sidelines. Mira, named as the tentative starting quarterback for the East, created a problem for his receivers with his low, fast tosses.

Cornell's Gary Wood, a dangerous runner, hurled a much softer pass that was gathered in more often.

Meanwhile, the East's third quarterback, Boston College's Jack Concannon, sat out the practice with a pulled left hamstring muscle. He is a doubtful starter.

On another of the University of Buffalo's fields, where the West drilled, Coach Bob Devaney of Illinois passed out new plays and then perspired as his players sought to carry out their assignments. They finally began to click, but not until near the end of the workout.

Included were plays featuring the aerials of Baylor's Don Trull, rated the top collegiate passer in the last two seasons, and Nebraska's Dennis Claridge. Both have been named as possible starters for the West, although Trull seems to have the edge.

Groundwise, Willis Crenshaw of Kansas State, a fullback, looked most impressive with his running.

Pass receivers who managed to snare the ball repeatedly included the East's Paul Warfield of Ohio State and Sherman Lewis of Michigan State and the West's Mel Profit of UCLA.

The game, expected to attract a crowd of 25,000 to War Memorial Stadium, will be televised nationally starting at 8:30 p.m., EST by ABC. It is co-sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association and the Buffalo Evening News.

Everybody's Business

Why Socialist-Crats Win, and Why We Lose

By SAM CAMPBELL

Socialism is conquering America.

But socialism keeps on winning.

Why?

Getting an answer to that question is a fairly urgent matter for the reason that if the Socialist-crats finally come out on top in this historic contest:

(a) the businessman will be reduced to a black marketer;

(b) the workingman will work for the pay that the state dictates;

(c) the professional man's career will be reduced to red-tape specialist;

(d) the schoolteacher won't have a prayer.

Just looking at the magnitude of the interests involved on each side, just thinking how much better off people would be in a state of freedom as opposed to a state monopoly, you would think offhand that the Socialist-crats didn't have a chance.

You might compare the whole encounter to a football game. Our side has all the beef. We field a full team, fill the sideline benches with substitutes, and have others sitting on the grass, but the scrawny opposition streaks for a touchdown right through the center of our line.

Why does this happen time after time? Do our opponents have a monopoly on quarterbacking?

To get an answer to the question of how the little team manages to beat the big team, let's get back to basic strategy.

Back in the Grecian days, there was a general from Athens named Miltiades. He got word the Persians were coming, and they had more men than he could round up. In the first phase of the battle, all he could put together was 10,000 Greeks to face twice that number of Persians.

Well, Miltiades knew his Persians. He knew they would march into battle in a long thin line. So he stretched his line out to meet them face to face. That gave the Persians a two-for-one advantage.

In fact, it gave them a better advantage than that. For canny old Miltiades thinned the center of his line out, and bunched the extra troops at the end. However, this arrangement gave the Greeks a numerical advantage on the ends.

As the two sides clashed, the weakened Greek center gave way, but the heavier ends charged the Persian flanks and rolled them up.

What happened, you see, is that the Greeks — although mathematically outnumbered — had effective numerical superiority at points of their choice.

That, I think, partly explains the Socialist - crat victories. They choose the point of attack. They bring overwhelming superiority to that point. They defeat the defenders, and then they shift their power to the next point in our line, and they roll it up.

Thus they took the schools, the doctors, the bankers, the electric utilities, group by group at steady intervals. Now they focus on the small businessman, the employment agencies, and the homeowner.

In the meantime, the defense runs around in a daze, banging one another on the head.

That's why the Socialist - crats win.

Largest Centrifuge Is Being Constructed

DOWNEY, Calif. (AP)—Scientists here are building what they call the world's largest centrifuge—a machine so big it can take four men on 30-day simulated space flights.

Two capsules mounted at any point on the 150-foot rotating arm each will carry two men, equipment and provisions sufficient for a month's spin, scientists say.

Researchers hope that studying human reactions to the prolonged rotation will give them clues on how man can live and work in space.

Rainbow Ice Cream Store Grand Opening Three Days

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Braum came to Colorado Springs to retire, but instead they've gone into business and will hold a grand opening of their Rainbow Ice Cream Store at 11 N. Circle Dr. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Braums formerly lived in Emporia, Kan., where they were married June 24, 1963, and where Braum operated the Braum Ice Cream Co. and the Peter Pan Ice Cream Stores for 25 years. The Braum Ice Cream Co. is the largest retail ice cream company in Kansas and is now owned and operated by his son, William Braum.

"We came to Colorado Springs to retire," Braum said, "but decided to go back into business."

Western Actor Battles Wife For Property

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ray (Crash) Corrigan, who endured hundreds of battles in his career as a Western actor, is engaged in the fight of his life. His opponent: his ex-wife.

The prize is the Corriganville movie ranch, 1,611 acres of rock-strewn hills and Western sets 25 miles north of Hollywood. Crash paid $11,000 for it in 1937. A fortnight ago the former Mrs. Corrigan outbid him in court with an offer of $2,506,000 for the property.

Crash has his aces in the hole. If his ex-wife comes up with the purchase price, he'll get half as his share of ownership. His production company holds a 23-year lease on the ranch, so he intends to continue operating it.

This was the latest of a series of court clashes in which the ex-wife, now Mrs. Rita Stiltz, has tried to wrest control of the property from Corrigan. She has plans to turn the ranch into a housing development. He wants it to continue as a haven of Western traditions.

"When I bought this place, it had been used as a dump for 30 years," he recalled. "Nothing but tin cans all over. It took me three years to clean it up and build camera roads so movie companies could work here."

He drove up a hill to a frontier embattlement — "built that for 'Fort Apache,' the Western with John Wayne and Shirley Temple."

Next, a thicket of oaks — "They've shot 'Robin Hood,' 'The Three Musketeers,' 'Mississippi Gambler' and lots of other pictures here; sometimes they hang Spanish moss on the trees for Southern locales."

A glade with fallen trees is where the Civil War camping scenes were shot for "How the West Was Won." And there is "Vendetta" village, built for $100,000 for the Howard Hughes film, and Boot Hill, constructed for the "Bat Masterson" series.

Corrigan parked his station wagon near the frontier railroad station and sauntered down the Western street, which has probably seen as much ammunition expended as Guadalcanal.

"I put 30 years of my life into this place. I built it from nothing into a top tourist attraction that has has as many as 15,000 visitors a day.

"I'd like to go on building it. I've had moneymen from the East offer to back me in making this a Western Disneyland."

He continues to operate Corriganville for the summer trade seven days a week. He runs the place with a firm, benevolent hand. At 57, Crash remains a robust figure, able to take a horse fall with the best of the stunt men.

He started in the film business in the early 1930s as double for Johnny Weissmuller in the Tarzan movies. Later he starred in the "Three Mesquiteer" series (with John Wayne) and the "Range Busters." He has withstood a broken back, arms, legs and breaks to numerous other bones. He plans to survive the courtroom clashes too.

REGREENING PEAS

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — The University of California at Davis has been the scene of experiments related to retaining the natural color of canned vegetables. The program is conducted by the National Canners Association.

Research aimed toward retaining the color of peas by natural processes is directed by Dr. C. O. Chichester. Color loss has been traced and experimentors have determined that regreening will occur under certain conditions.

Chichester controlled the acid-alkaline level during heating, canned the vegetable and stored it for a few weeks at 85 or 90 degrees Farenheit. During the warm storage period, the peas regained their natural green color.

The association said further work is going on to keep the vegetables' color natural without the addition of pigments or catalytic agents.

Edward Kennedy Was Reported 'Almost Dead'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) —An aide to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Tuesday night that Kennedy had no pulse and his blood pressure "was almost non - existent" when he was brought into Cooley Dickinson Hospital early Saturday after a plane crash.

"We almost lost him," press secretary Edward Martin said.

Martin credited Dr. Thomas F. Corriden with saving the life of Kennedy, 32-year-old Massachusetts Democrat and brother of the late President John F. Kennedy.

A 6 p.m. hospital report Tuesday said Kennedy's "general condition is very satisfactory."

His brother, U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, visited the hospital again and said: "He looks a lot better than he did 24 hours ago."

Sen. Kennedy's administrative aide, Edward S. Moss, and the pilot, Edwin T. Zimny, were killed in the crash. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and the latter's wife, Marvella, were injured.

Kennedy is immobilized in an orthopedic bed to permit his injured back to heal. His press secretary said he will be kept in this apparatus until about July 6.

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, wife of the President, telephoned the hospital Tuesday inquiring about the two senators and Mrs. Bayh.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Cutting Down Poverty

We can be thankful for one thing, at least. In his campaign against poverty, President Johnson appears to be fully aware of the fact that what a man really requires is a job and not a handout. The problem seems to be to find the jobs.

But that's a relatively easy thing to do. Economists have known the answer to the job problem for years. Technically, there is no such thing as unemployment. What appears on charts and in statistical columns as unemployment is merely "disemployment." Everyone able to work could find a job, IF he were willing to accept the job available for him at the wage rate the job can provide.

We are not talking about persons who are not capable of being employed. There are some of these, of course. Those who are permanently impaired in health or limbs are not employable for reasons beyond anyone's power to control. When this happens, jobs are no solution. Such persons must have a helping hand from family, friends or from charitable organizations.

Fortunately, however, the numbers of persons thus unable to hold a job provide only a very minor statistic. And work being done in many areas which can rehabilitate a handicapped person and make him entirely competent to hold down a job, is inspiring.

But the problem of job hunting for the great number of unemployed is first of all a psychological problem relating to their own deep commitment either to find work or to avoid it. There are thousands of men who turn down jobs every day because the job they want isn't available and the job they can get, they would prefer to avoid. Thus, what is evident is not "unemployment" but willful disemployment, for cause.

And there's a curious commentary on that. Statistics show that there is a great deal of unemployment among city youths between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one. And in the same cities with them are many jobs going "begging." Reason?

One of the big ones is the laws which prohibit child labor; or which make the matter of getting a job for a young man or young woman so hemmed in with red-tape that a lot of the young people feel it is hardly worth trying. The jobs of which we speak do not require technical skill, a college degree or even a high school diploma.

True, some of them don't pay huge sums of money. But they can be found and the bigger the city, the more likely it is that many jobs of that kind will be available, if the young man or woman will go looking for it.

Of course, the scare talk, inspired by labor bosses in our various unions, is that machines are putting people out of work. The fact is to the contrary. Machines do not cause unemployment, but they do stimulate disemployment. They tend to encourage a shift in employment from certain kinds of work to other kinds of work.

But there are thousands of jobs which are not going to be affected by automation and there are thousands of men who, with no more than a brief period of training right on the job, can fit themselves for this type of work if they will. Some of these jobs pay well, too.

For instance, there is always a shortage of good cooks, fry-cooks, bakers, chefs. There is a shortage of service personnel in almost every hotel and resort area. As a matter of fact, so serious is this lack in this country that campaigns are conducted to entice people from other countries to come over to America to fill posts of this kind.

And then there are all kinds of selling jobs open to anyone who will work and is not afraid of people. We recall, during the midst of our "great depression," seeing at least a full column of "help wanted" ads in the Los Angeles Times every day, when conditions were supposed to be at their very worst.

There are jobs, too, which require a very small investment and at the same time offer an opportunity for a young man or woman to actually become independent. There are doughnut machines, knitting machines, popcorn machines, most of which can be purchased on terms permitting a person to become self-employed.

And parking lots are always looking for lads who can drive cars carefully and park them without nicking fenders, and filling stations want attendants.

From the standpoint of licking poverty, there are several things to be done.

First, we could get the government to stop taxing us so that it could spend huge salaries on people who, were they not employed in government, might actually go out and set up businesses.

Then we could repeal the laws which make it difficult and sometimes impossible for young people to find work or, rather, to accept a job when it is available.

And finally, we can begin to understand that there are more jobs that need doing in this world than have ever been done; that there will never really be unemployment until we run out of vision, natural resources and human energy.

Since the supply of these things appears to be fairly constant, what we can do immediately is this. Accept the job that is available, even if it isn't the ideal employment you want. Continue looking for a better job when you have one you don't really want. And meanwhile, stop accepting government handouts for unemployment relief, which only add to the tax burden and cut down on the number of jobs established businesses could make available.

Automation and Education

By FRED G. CLARK and R. S. RIMANOCZY

About 100 years ago, automation (in the form of farm power tools) struck the United States labor force what could — under other circumstances — have been called a death blow.

Within the century, 90 per cent of the farm jobs were to disappear.

But instead of being a death blow to the economy, it was a life blow because it freed millions of farm workers from hard labor and provided the industrial manpower without which the United States could not have developed its unequaled standard of living.

(That is still the chief problem of "backward" nations today: too many people are needed in farming.)

As the industrial tools of the U. S. became more and more automatic, a smaller and smaller percentage of workers were needed in production, and many of these people moved into service jobs: maintenance, transportation, selling, installing, repairing, and personal services vital to a highly developed economy.

Still others joined the swelling ranks of badly needed professional workers: teachers, nurses, technicians, policemen, firemen, etc.

During this process the United States achieved the highest standard of living in all history, and the release from physical labor was welcomed.

But as we all know, the nation has become alarmed by the current elimination of production jobs now going on as "automated" "programmed" equipment continues to be installed.

Why — for the first time — are Americans dreading the release from drudgery?

It is not because of the lack of waiting unfilled jobs; it is because these unfilled jobs require skills which the job-seekers do not have, and many of which do not have the education needed to acquire them.

The long-range problem lies not with the people displaced by automation; it lies with the lack of mental skills — reading, writing and arithmetic — on the part of the young people entering the working force.

(In the current World's Fair public opinion poll asking, "Which are the most important subjects for elementary school children?" these three fundamental skills hold a four-to-one lead over all the others.)

When the history of 20th Century America is written this temporary "tragedy" will be a short chapter, but in the 1960's it is the No. 1 sociological problem.

What happened is that, at the same time more mental skills began to be needed, education was experimenting with a program that did not insist that children master subjects they did not "like."

So this particular shift of employment, due to improved machinery, finds many of the unemployed virtually unemployable for the jobs open to them.

To make matters worse, the shortage of properly educated employees is forcing automation at an even faster pace.

It is an unfortunate accident in the history of progress, but history tells us that progress never adapts itself to people; people adapt themselves to progress.

There is no easy immediate solution, but there will be no solution until more of today's young people are educated for today's jobs.

Mob Rule and Conscience

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

This being an election year, I occasionally receive unwelcome news about somebody who returns to the ballot box, as a matter of conscience, despite expressed convictions that government, per se, is evil and that mob rule is immoral.

I face the statement I will quote with mixed emotions — consternation and amusement — "we must continue to exercise our voting privilege when given a chance of improving the situation even a little, but at the same time try to educate people to the idea that majority rule isn't morally right."

At this time I can find no justification for the idea that anybody will be able to educate others to believe that mob rule is wrong while sanctioning mob rule himself, but the real clue to the problem rests in another statement, "Perhaps this is our chance to gain control away from them and maybe strengthen the Republican party enough to once more have a representative two-party system."

My correspondent is exactly correct. If she wants to live under a representative two-party system and wants her party to hold the control and power over others, for any reason, good or bad, she should certainly vote to assist the candidates she likes in their search for power over those of whom she disapproves. If you want the rulers you elect to hold power over your and those who disapprove of the rulers you like, the ballot box is the only proper method of sanctioning the system.

My correspondent also mentions that voting is a privilege and it certainly is a privilege granted by government so that you may express a preference for the rulers under which you are willing to serve while you sanction the system and the rulership which may be imposed by the winner, even though you do not care for that type of rulership.

None of which has anything to do with a willingness to stand on your own two feet, in freedom.

Of course, my correspondent ignores the fact that she sanctions the rulership of her candidate over me and that by voting, she also sanctions the system which will provide me with a ruler of whom she disapproves. Of course, rulers will be elected again by others who believe their candidate for rulership knows what's best for me and my family and that they will get the best of the deal if "their man" is elected, but, at least, I will not have any of the rulers on my conscience and when we get right down to cold, hard, reason, it is only my own conscience with which I am concerned.

Of course, those who vote obviously do not mind that I, too, and my family, will become the victims of their consciences which dictate that some good will come out of evil.

In the midst of all this, I also recognize the absolute fact that people who express their warm approval for private enterprise even in public print, advocate voting for one ruler instead of another until they can help educate the masses to understand the evil which they sanction by their own voting. Seems to me that people are known by their deeds and not their idle conversation.

But, my wife is wonderful. She said, "It's rough to take and I continue to remind myself, as you remind yourself, that only five years ago we believed our candidate would make the best ruler and that he could accomplish great things if only we could help him succeed in his search for the power which would make it possible for him to make laws in order to make things better for everybody whether they liked it or not." And she is so right and we will continue to exercise patience and remember our own evil doings at the ballot box.

And I also remember and think about the people stacked up in big cities and I think about people in houses only 20 or 30 feet from their neighbor's, and I will now go to my class and talk about the ultimate folly of man, with arms outstretched, eager for chains.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

GOLDWATER'S WORK

To the Editor:

Your wonderful article in the Gazette about the work of Barry Goldwater during this campaign leads me to hope that I may add a few words describing the man who accomplished all this work.

Barry was born on New Year's Day, 1909, in Phoenix, Arizona, three years before Arizona was admitted as a state. He had a brother Bob and a sister Carolyn. The boys after a few years organized the Central Athletic Club atop the Goldwater garage with Harry Rosensweig (present campaign finance manager) and John Henry Lewis (a Negro who later became world light heavyweight boxing champion) as charter members. They played football, basketball, and baseball and had general good times. Barry, always searching for an outlet for his energy, taught himself to play the saxophone, clarinet, and mandolin. He is a life member of the AFL musicians local in Tucson and Phoenix. Then he discovered radio. He and some friends built and operated amateur station 6BBH, which later became the present day 5,000 - watt KOY. Together they built a two-tube, 10-watt transmitter, and Barry went on the air with his own station, 6BPI. Soon he took an early model home set and converted it to mobile use in his auto. He still operates as a ham radio operator with call letters K7UGA. He has been able to help many by his contacts, and sends cards to persons he has talked to over the radio.

I am mentioning these many things Barry has accomplished to show his quality of mind and body. In 1930 flying was new and risky but he took flying lessons. "I'd beat it out to the field and take my lesson and be back to the store in time to work," he recalled. "Mother never knew where I went at that hour, but thought I went to see a girl."

Since then, Major General Goldwater has piloted more than 75 different aircraft, including 16 jets. Early this year, aboard the carrier Enterprise he borrowed a Navy flight suit and rode as a passenger in an F-4B Phantom in a catapult take - off.

In the 1930's he also became thoroughly acquainted with photography. As in all his achievements, he was very thorough in his mastery of photography. His photographs of Arizona were exhibited in salons over the world, and throughout the United States. He was elected to associate membership in the Royal Photographic Society of London. He has a collection of 8,000 slides and photographs of Arizona — its people, its color, its natural landmarks. He has put together two books of Arizona portraits. He had served as president of the freshman class in high school, but his father decided a military training would be better for him, so he went to the Staunton Military Academy at Staunton, Va. He was there two years and captained the swimming team which won the state championship. He was awarded the Kable Medal as the outstanding all - round cadet. The following fall he enrolled in the University of Arizona at Tucson. He was center on the freshman football team, pledged Sigma Chi fraternity, was elected class president for the second semester. He was chairman of Stadium Fund Committee which raised the money for the U.A. football stadium.

When he was 20 his father died and he had to leave college and return home. He went into the Goldwater store as a junior clerk, and served in all the jobs between that and manager during the next few years. Barry's father had a fine store when Barry took charge and he enlarged and improved it till it was one of the finest stores in Arizona. Experience like he has had is invaluable. His record as senator is among the best for voting conservative on all laws.

MISS AMERICA

To the Editor:

The Miss America Pageant is deeply indebted to the Gazette Telegraph for their wonderful cooperation in making the first Miss Colorado Springs Pageant the success we understand it to have been.

Without such help on the part of a very fine newspaper, the Optimist Club could not have attained the goal they were seeking, i.e., a truly fine civic event for their community and an opportunity for the young women of Colorado Springs.

Without the help of the fine newspapers of this country, the Miss America Pageant could never have grown to be the fabulous scholarship program it represents today for young women. We are deeply indebted to all of you, and particularly to newspapers such as yours, who have cooperated so wholeheartedly in the conduct of our grassroot pageants where Miss America is found.

THE RECORD

To the Editor:

A few prominent Republicans have expressed fear that if Senator Goldwater is nominated it will result in the Republican candidates in their states losing in the election. The past record between conservatives and others reflects the opposite.

The 80th Congress, elected in the absence of a Republican in the White House, when Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, called "Mr. Republican," was the acknowledged leader, consisted of 296 Republican Senators and Congressmen and 232 Democrats. There followed nominee Dewey's "me too" losing race in 1948 and Moderate Eisenhower's landslide victories in 1952 and 1956 when the Republican membership in the 86th Congress dropped to 186 and the Democratic membership increased 114, or 49 per cent. Republicans need not fear the candidacy of Goldwater as this, like other records, clearly indicates the Republican candidates for lesser offices fare much better under the leadership of a conservative than under the leadership of a liberal or moderate.

First Figure

Sure, you can have what you want out of life. That's not the problem. The problem is that you are going to have to pay for what you get. And if you don't figure the cost first, it will bury you at the last.

'Economize—or Perish'

For persons on the threshold of economic inquiry for the first time, we would like to recommend a dandy little volume just made available through Northwood Institute at Midland, Michigan.

It is called: "Economize — Or Perish" and it comes from the pen of our old friend, Dr. V. Orval Watts.

The language of economics, as has sometimes been noted, is often obscure and confusing. Someone has said that economics is a term applied to a language of obfuscation in which the obvious is concealed. While this may be true in some cases, it certainly is not true of Dr. Watts and he is never more clear and easily understood than in this new booklet. If parents have youngsters getting ready to go to college or who are interested in the subject, this little paperback (only 50 cents) puts forward some basic essentials in a way anyone can remember them.

Dr. Watts begins by reminding us that "praise of poverty" and a "scorn of affluence" are about as ancient as the records of human beings can be traced. And then he jolts us by showing that one of the major circumstances which made America a land different from all others was that in this country right from the beginning we took it for granted that we were NOT going to be bound by poverty and the limiting conditions of our forefathers.

The problem, as he shows it, is that in America, having worked hard to produce a superior way of life, we now have a host of politicians who are trying to persuade us that too much spending in the "private" sector is selfish and narrow and that wealth should be transferred to the "public" sector for our own good. So even as the government takes on what appears to be an all-out attack against poverty, it adopts a means whereby the wealth that may be in the private sector can be taken out and diverted into public channels. Thus, private wealth can be replaced by public prosperity. But the overall result will be private poverty glossed over as the government becomes more affluent.

Moving closer to his subject, the author states: "Life is purposive action and economy of effort is essential for achievement of any purpose. The urge to economize, therefore, begins with the will to live."

In other words, if you wish to accomplish any given purpose, you will have to harness your energies to that purpose. And this means, of course, that you will have to remove your attention and energy from other possible avenues you could pursue, thus "economizing" in the management of your time and resources.

He provides a marvelous illustration by calling to mind the Martin family, reported in Reader's Digest, December of 1955. The aim and purpose of Mr. and Mrs. Martin was to have 12 children and to send them all to college. How they actually achieved this goal is a thrilling tale, for the income of Mr. Martin was low and the cost of college for 12 is very high.

The Martins could not have made this achievement had they not learned the value of economy. That is, they refrained from doing other things they also wanted to do, so that their major achievements could be attained.

Other areas which are dealt with in this book include the subject of profits, the concept of self-control, the recognition that human wants and desires have no limits, and the equal recognition that the person who learns how to economize can get what he wants.

Here are some typical quotations: "Success in getting profits is necessary for the growth and development of any individual and for the survival of any species. If any living creature expands its energies so as to get in return no more than enough to replace the energy spent, it may subsist, but it cannot grow, it does not gain the reserves necessary to replace losses from unforeseen accidents, and it does not get the means for reproduction."

Or again: "Desires of free men are limitless because, in freedom, men's minds develop insatiable hungers as the bodies of animals do not. . . .Only the restraints of physical force — initiated against them, legally or illegally, by their misguided fellows — can put a stop to the efforts of individuals. . ."

"Economize — Or Perish" is not a text book. It's a handy, pocket-size introduction to a vital field that can be accepted and understood by nearly anyone.

It can be obtained at Northwood Institute, Midland, Michigan, or at Freedom School, Box 165, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

It's Up to You

Federalization

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Wayne Township, where I live, is located in a pleasant part of New Jersey, about 25 miles out of New York. It is a rather prosperous community situated among well wooded rolling hills and inhabited by industrious intelligent people. A recent report prepared by our local government revealed that our affairs have been in good hands and we are planning wisely for the future.

However, there was a picture in this report of three of our top officials. They were smiling happily as they looked at a check for $371,000 of federal aid as the first payment toward the cost of our new sewers. If the federal government can pay the cost of installing sewers in Wayne Township, there isn't any need of any municipality anywhere in the United States that cannot be met by Uncle Sam. In other words, we are on the verge of complete federalization.

These three gentlemen would not be smiling so broadly if they realized that for every dollar our municipality and other municipalities get from Washington, a larger number of dollars must be sent to that city.

Our officials would not have been so happy if they stopped to realize that thousands of other municipalities throughout our great land also have pipelines laid to Washington and are sucking out their quota of dollars.

When we accept money from Washington to pay for our sewers, we assume the obligation of helping to pay for the sewers of thousands of other municipalities all over the country. To collect money from everywhere and then channel some of it back to each community is an expensive process. A substantial portion is lost along the way. We are not as careful with Uncle Sam's money as we are with our own. Other municipalities are also careless because they delude themselves by thinking they do not have to be so careful with federal money.

This extravagant and wasteful system has been urged upon us by politicians who seek to create the impression that they are doing something for their constituents. Bureaucrats like it because it means more well paid jobs for them. It gives them an opportunity to preside over the vast golden stream flowing to Washington and to channel it back as they see fit to the various communities. It puts vast powers of control into their hands. In time it will destroy our independence and self government and make us subservient to the central government in Washington. Meanwhile, and increasingly so, we the people, in all communities, will have much less than we could have if we paid all of our bills, and contributed nothing to the needs of other communities. When money has to be raised at home, it is far more carefully expended than if it comes from Washington. Federal aid is a "pied piper" leading us over the cliffs to destruction.

Thoughts by the Wayside

By FRANK McDONOUGH

Thoughtfulness does not seem to be one of the increasing virtues of the present age, yet by giving thought to the other fellow many minor evils of the present day could be corrected.

With the coming of the Air Academy and other military installations, our city has benefited greatly and has enjoyed a growth and prosperity far beyond its normal. It is to be expected that air flights over the city will occur at frequent intervals and to this our residents will adjust as they did to the constantly increasing and various noises of traffic.

In my recent bout with whatever the malady happened to be I was located in a pleasant room of the eleventh floor of the hospital. As far as I was concerned, excessive noises did not bother me; however, in such a hospital there are patients in various stages of health and for all too many absolute quiet is almost essential. One night a squadron of screaming jets passed very close overhead and then returned. In common parlance they buzzed the building back and forth for nearly one half hour. This was wholly inexcusable and a commanding officer should have applied common sense to such a situation. There is ample room away from hospitals and heavily populated areas for such thoughtless antics and performance.

It is suggested that the Air Force officers take notice of such incidents and prohibit the repetition of such dangerous annoyance, especially in the vicinity of hospitals. If the military will not do so of its own volition, the civilian authorities should step in with stern rules against such practices.

The practice of thoughtfulness could well be applied to many phases of our present day life and the immediate cessation of such practices is well in order.

Each phase of our intricate present-day progress could well be tempered into better living by the exercise of thoughtfulness on the part of all.

Wit and Whimsy

An old fellow drove into Portland and looked up the Bureau of Missing Persons. He reported that his wife had been missing for fifteen years. The bureau clerk was shocked.

Clerk: "You're just reporting it now? You want her back after all that time?"

Then the man nodded and explained: "I just got lonesome."

Knitting, Crocheting Test Slated for El Paso Fair

Knitters and crocheters from Maine to California will be needling their way to fame against fellow needlework hobbyists this year as contestants in the 1964 National Wool Needlework Contest.

To enable residents of this area to participate, entries for the nationwide competition, being held for its second successive year, will be submitted for judging locally at the El Paso County Fair, which takes place from Aug. 14 to Aug. 16. No entries may be made directly to the contest's national headquarters.

The contest which is being held again under the joint sponsorship of the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association and the American Wool Council is open to all non-professional needleworkers and will offer a grand national prize of $1,000 cash plus a trip to New York and a three-day stay for two, as well as a special engraved trophy. Additional cash awards and ribbons will also be made to national winners other than the grand national champion.

Contestants must initially win a first prize in the judging being held at the El Paso County Fair, before being eligible for the national judging, which is to be held in New York late in 1964. The blue ribbon award at the fair will be made in six different categories, three each for knitters and crocheters, with an engraved trophy awarded to the entry, selected from all six first prize winners as "Best of Fair."

The six first place winners selected by the fair will then be supplied by the National Hand Knitting Yarn Association with complete information and official forms for entering their winning designs in the national finals.

All articles submitted for judging in the 1964 National Wool Needlework Contest must be knitted or crocheted of 100 per cent wool or mohair yarn. Entries must have been completed since Jan. 1, 1964 and each entry must carry one label of the yarn used. Contestants are permitted to submit as many entries as desired in any of the categories. These categories, for both knitting and crocheting, include afghans, sweaters and three-piece baby sets (one category).

At the judging at the fair, additional ribbons will also be awarded to second and third place winners in each of the six categories.

Natural Rock Gardens Best

FORT COLLINS — A good rock garden is neither an assortment of boulders nor a mineral collection, states C. M. "Chuck" Drage, Colorado State University extension horticulturist.

"Rather, a good rock garden is a highly individualistic endeavor that emphasizes natural appearance," the horticulturist explains.

Fifth Quarter Horse Show Features Excellent Stock

By ROBIN TIBBETS
Farm and Ranch Editor

Some of the finest horseflesh in the West turned out last Friday and Saturday for the fifth annual Pikes Peak Quarter Horse Show held at Penrose Stadium.

The two-day show featured open cutting competition, the Pikes Peak Invitational Team Tying, halter class judging, and performance classes.

Maurice Laycock of Cheyenne, Wyo., was judge, with John Mariani of Greeley and Herb Johnson of Colorado Springs as announcers. Hugh Bennett, president of the American Quarter Horse Association and former world's champion cowboy, was arena chairman with L. A. McElhinny as ring steward.

Top trophy to be presented during the show was the trophy buckle for the high point horse in the show. This went to LeRoy Webb, trainer of Skipette, owned by H. J. Weiscamp. Skipette placed third in senior reining, fourth in senior roping, second in the Aged Mares division of the halter classes.

The trophy was donated by the Exchange National Bank and presented by Jasper D. Ackerman, president.

Winner of the open cutting competition was Poco Pico owned by the T Cross Ranch. The horse scored a total of 219 points in two go-rounds and in the finals, winning first place in both the first and second go-rounds.

At the close of the cutting horse finals, Bob Norris of the T Cross Ranch announced that he was retiring Poco Pico from competition and that Saturday night's appearance would be the animal's last one.

Trophy for the cutting horse competition was donated by Western States Cutting Horse Association, Alliance, Neb.

Trophies and ribbons were presented to winners by the Girl of the West, Janet Phelps, hostess for the forthcoming Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, and her aides, Lauren McCloud and Kathy Heyse.

One of the few events in a quarter horse show which involves the rider more than the horse is the trailer race. Competitors must have a pickup truck, a horse trailer, horse, saddle and bridle, and a good roping arm in order to win.

The race started Saturday night with the vehicles of the four contestants facing the chutes at Penrose Stadium. All horses were in their trailers, saddles off, bridles and neckropes on. At a signal, the horses were unloaded and saddled, and the riders leaped on their mounts, roped and tied one of the calves turned loose in the arena, returned to their trailers, unsaddled their horses, loaded them in the trailer — tailgate up — tossed their saddles in the pickup. The first contestant to get inside the cab of his pickup and turn on the headlights was deemed the winner.

Jack Blasingame was the winner of the trailer race Saturday night with Jack Rydberg coming in second and Ira J. Woods taking third. Mark Helms did not succeed in catching his calf, but took fourth place anyway. There seemed to be some discussion about the rules of the game, as the announcer read the rules twice over the public address system. Although no explanation was made, it was noted that one of the contestants had a man helping him with the saddling of his mount, while the other three contestants worked alone.

Results of the various contests are as follows:

Actor's Legacy Provides Home For Thespians

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tempestuous actor Edwin Forrest, whose bravura voice was stilled by death in 1872, lives on in a special role—that of host to retired actors and actresses.

Forrest, never far from tragedy, either on the stage or in private life, lived for the play and the players. It was said that he couldn't distinguish make-believe from reality. The debacle of his marriage, once called idylic, seemed a sad reprise of "Othello" — jealousy and absurdity rampant—with an anti-climactic farewell at once grandiose and pathetic.

After the divorce, Forrest lived alone in his mansion here, a star's memorabilia around him, with the world of the theater taking possession of him more than ever.

No wonder then, that he willed his mansion to his fellow players who needed help in their later years.

Forrest left an estate large enough to go on making money, and that money in turn has made more money, largely through stocks, real estate and mortgages. Endowments and bequests—one alone was $325,000—have helped with the upkeep.

The home, which bears the Forrest name, is red brick Tudoresque in style, with a park as the vista in front and a golf course for a back view. It has a library of 6,000 books, mainly about the theater, souvenirs of the stage, such as swords and pistols used by Forrest in classic roles, his make-up kit, armor, marble and bronze statues, oil portraits. The library includes a copy of the first folio edition of Shakespeare's works. Another showpiece, in the great hall, is a larger than life statue of Forrest in Shakespearean robes and sandals.

The bedrooms are cozy, tastefully, almost luxuriously furnished. Each is named after a famous actor or actress of the past. The dining room and lounge are the sort you'd find in a good, quiet hotel or club.

The Forrest hospitality goes all the way—no guest pays so much as a dime for keep.

The sole condition for admission is that the applicant be in good health. Once a person is installed in the home, however, he is taken care of entirely. Should hospital treatment or nursing home care be needed later, the Forrest scheme of things foots the bill.

Originally, the Forrest will require that an applicant must have had at least five years on the legitimate stage in order to get a berth. Long ago, however, this provision was liberalized. Just about any kind of authentic show business experience will do now.

Forrest laid down one more condition. He stipulated that every year, in April, a party be held in the home to celebrate Shakespeare's birthday.

Food and drink are served. Guests from Broadway and elsewhere deliver some of the bard's great lines. Madrigals are song and spectators are regaled with Elizabethan folk dances. This year the party was brought off with more than the usual flourish because 1964 marks the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth.

The home can accommodate 22 but right now has only five guests.

Mrs. Gloria Rodgers, whose official title is hostess-manager, says: "So far as I know, this is the only home of its kind anywhere. You can see what a lovely place it is. Why we're not filled up all the time, with a long waiting list in the bargain, is a mystery to me."

PROSPERITY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The gross national product, sum total of all the goods and services the nation produces, rose from $242 billion in 1940 to almost $600 billion last year, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare reports.

"Personal wealth increased correspondingly," the department said in its report — "Converging Social Trends, Emerging Social Problems." If all incomes Americans received in 1963, after taxes, had been exactly the same, you would have had $2,127, whereas in 1940 you would have had (in terms of 1963 buying power) only $1,309."

Fill an empty spray-type bottle with turpentine and keep it in the workshop. It will simplify the job of cleaning paint-soiled hands.

Roundup

By Robbin Tibbets

It isn't easy to dedicate your life to the service of others, for human beings are just naturally inclined to be a little selfish. That's the reason why writers sing so loudly the praises of those individuals who are constantly doing something for someone else, often at great expense to themselves.

The pity of it all is that so many of these unselfish people are never recognized except by those who have benefitted from their willingness to serve under the terms laid down by the Golden Rule.

Too, we often fail to recognize the great works of these people until long after they are around to receive the praise.

This month marks the final chapter in the long and active career of a woman who has, truly, spent her entire life in the service of a most important segment of this nation, our young people.

Ruth Appelthun was born near Cottonwood, Minn., and at the age of 18 months went to live with neighbors due to the illness of her parents and an infant sister. When her mother died and her father remarried she continued to live with the neighbors.

She attended rural school in a one-room building six months out of the year for seven years, and completed the five upper grades in the Cottonwood public schools.

Her adopted family provided her with a college education at St. Olaf College where she majored in bio-chemistry, education and home economics. After receiving her degree, she taught school in South Dakota and in 1926 moved to Florence, Colo., where she taught home economics. During summer vacations she worked in the diet kitchen at Children's Hospital and at Colorado General Hospital.

It was in 1934 that Miss Appelthun joined the Colorado State University Extension Service, choosing this new field in preference to continuing to teach school. Her first assignment was at Sterling. When the opportunity was presented for a move to Colorado Springs, she leaped at the chance, having wanted for many years to live here.

"Extension," Miss Appelthun says, "has been a continuous challenge with opportunity to attend summer sessions and workshops to try to keep updated. Information doubles in 10 years, so there has not been any opportunity to drift along."

The principal part of Ruth Appelthun's job has been to teach homemakers the art of homemaking. To accomplish this task in a successful manner, it is desirable to start them out young. She works closely with 4-H Club girls in El Paso County, giving them more than just the basic information they need in order to become good wives and mothers. With her help, they learn to cook and to sew; to keep a clean and neat house; to care for their husbands and children; to buy wisely at grocery and dry goods stores; to manage their money; to groom themselves attractively. Through the judging programs, she teaches them to know a good product when they see it, whether it is a piece of furniture or a slice of meat.

Last, but certainly not least, she has instilled in the future homemakers the importance of love for God and man, and in so doing has added considerable strength to the cornerstone of life — the home.

There can be no greater contribution.

Manitou Council Splits Vote on Storage Tank

Manitou Springs City Counccil Wednesday approved by a split council vote a decision to go ahead on plans to design and engineer a two - million gallong capacity storage tank in the city water improvement program.

The action came after heated discussion involving inconsistencies of past studies and centered on whether a large settler tank of 3 - million gallon capacity would be the better choice, as proposed by Councilman Floyd Lee.

Voting against the proposal for a smaller storage tank were councilmen Floyd Lee, Fred Jordan and Mrs. Mabel Willie. City Attorney Blakemore McCarty ruled that a vote by the council president was permissible, since the measure did not involve an actual contract.

Action leading to the decision found the council deadlocked in a split vote on a first proposaal by Councilman Lee for a 3 - million gallon capacity tank, due to technical wording of the proposal in the form of a motion that would have prevented the deciding vote of the council president.

Action on a related measure also approved, again by a split vote, was the proposal to terminate both previous and present agreements with Beck Associates, consulting engineers hired by a previous council to provide a study and recommendations for the water improvement program.

Put as a motion by Councilman Z. A. Nevins and seconded by Councilman William Cochran, approvals were voiced by Councilman Cochran, Frank Altman, and Nevins with the deciding vote by Council President Mayor L. L. Longaker.

In addition to terminating the Beck Associates services, the action would also provide for settlement of monetary obligation to the firm to date.

Other measures before the council, receiving unanimous action, included a drafted set of rules and regulations of city employes resulting from a study concerned with bettering annual sick leave, accrued leave and other benefits. The measure put before the council by Councilman Jordan, was adopted, subject to revision of one article concerned with accrual of vacation time of rehired employes. The measure will go into effect July 1.

Also approved was the appointment of James W. Johnson to serve as supervisor of City Roads and Parks.

Summer entertainment contracts totalling $1,240 were also approved.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Too Old to Change

DEAR ABBY: We live on a farm and my sister, who is in her 40's, does the farm work. She wears jeans and a blouse and goes out in the field with the tractor to work. When it gets hot, she sheds her blouse and works in her bra. She is of a slight build, and has little for anyone to see, but all the same, when my parents, and brothers and sisters-in-law meet her out-of-doors dressed like that they blow their stacks. She says it's no different than being on the beach in a swim suit. Lots of strangers come by our place, but she says it's our property and if they don't like what they see they don't have to look. Who is right? And how do you handle a situation like this? — SLIPPERY ROCK

DEAR SLIPPERY: A "bra" is an undergarment and should not be worn as an outer garment. There are halters for that purpose. In my opinion, your sister should wear halters. However, a 40-year-old woman who drives a tractor is not interested in a lecture from me (OR from you) on propriety and fashion. Be realistic and give up.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the 12-year-old girl who resented being an UNPAID BABY-SITTER for her parents. I am 16 and have two younger sisters and a baby brother. My father works from seven A.M. until six P.M., six days a week, and my mother is tied down to her housework and the children all day. I've been baby-sitting for four years. I like to earn money, too, but I would give up a date or a baby-sitting job at the slightest hint that my parents wanted to go out for an evening. They deserve it! Who needs to be paid? Their love and appreciation are all the pay I want. "Unpaid" is only 12. She had better overcome her selfishness and be grateful that she can do something for her parents. — RUTH B. IN ERIE, PA.

DEAR RUTH: It's a joy to print your letter. I wish my readers knew how many WHOLESOME, GENEROUS, and CONSIDERATE teen-agers there are. Unfortunately, the only ones they read about are those who get into trouble.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am stupid, but I don't knew where else to get this information. When living in a rented house, who is supposed to take down the storm windows and put up the screens? The tenant or the owner? — INTERESTED PARTY

DEAR INTERESTED: Unless it is specifically stated in the contract, the owner assumes that responsibility. (Are you trying to pass the buck or save one?)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Madame L'O": Do not assume that, because a man boasts that in all his life he has never smoked a cigarette or tasted whisky, he has not done worse.

Cigarette Ads, Packs to Carry Warning Labels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has decided to require that cigarette advertising and labeling include a warning to the public of possible health hazards, it was announced today.

FTC Chairman Rand Dixon made the announcement during a congressional hearing on the controversy surrounding the effects of smoking on health.

Dixon did not specify what the regulation will contain. Nor did he say what type of label cigarette manufacturers would be required to carry on packages.

The FTC held hearings on proposed advertising and labeling regulations and since May 15 has been considering whether to adopt them and, if so, precisely in what form.

Dixon said today:

"The commission has completed its consideration of the record in this proceeding and has determined that the public interest requires the provocation of a trade-regulation rule for the prevention of unfair or deceptive advertising or labeling of cigarettes in relation to the health hazard of smoking."

Dixon made the statement in remarks prepared in advance for the second day of House hearings on the whole question of cigarettes and the dangers smoking them poses to human health.

Dixon said the commission's decision was being printed and would be formally published "in the very near future."

He asked the House Commerce Committee to withhold final action on pending legislation until it had an opportunity to consider the FTC decision.

Dixon announcement came one day after the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) told the committee that it felt HEW, rather than the FTC, should regulate labeling, and that new legislation was necessary.

City Planners To Hold Special Session

The City Planning Commission will meet in special session at 4 p.m. Thursday to reorganize for the coming year.

A new chairman and vice chairman are to be elected and the three new members of the board will be briefed on their duties.

The terms of Wayne Browneller, chairman, and Brian Mullett, vice chairman, have expired. They were not reappointed. The term of Dr. Fred Soodermann also expired and was not renewed.

One order of business will be on the agenda. Monday the commission approved a sign variance at the K-Mart construction site. However, City Attorney F. T. Henry said the action was not valid since there was not a quorum.

The commission will reconsider the request Thursday.

AFA Cadets Become 'Third Lieutenants'

Four hundred eighty cadets of the Class of 1966 became "third lieutenants" this week at more than 100 bases throughout the Air Force.

Having ended a three week field study of such areas as Europe, South America and the Far East, the cadets joined combat ready squadrons in the United States, Europe and the Far East to learn more about Air Force operations.

One hundred five of their classmates who have been "third lieutenants" since June 6 at bases in Europe will end "Operation Third Lieutenant" Friday (June 26) and make a two and a half week field study of the U. S. bases in Europe.

Through "Operation Third Lieutenant," cadets get a first hand look at the duties and problems of Air Force officers at the squadron level. A cadet is assigned as an assistant squadron staff officer and may gain experience in operations, maintenance, electronics, armament, training or other aspects the unit's operation.

More than 20 cadets were assigned to bases in Europe, 70 went to the Far East and the remainder were assigned to bases in the U.S.

The cadets will go on leave when their training is over and return to the Academy August 18 for classes starting August 21.

TRACK STAR

CHICAGO (UPI) Jointless track welded into virtually unlimited lengths is resulting in smoother train travel, less damage to rolling stock and reduced maintenance costs for many U.S. railroads, reports Chemetron Corp.'s National Cylinder Gas division, which has introduced a German process here, said to be the best system of its kind in producing weld metal to match the steel of the rails being joined.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear this happens to you. Just sprinkle some FASTEETH, the alkaline powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour, contains no odor breath. Robert Kennedy Bows Out of U.S. Senate Race

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy begins a sentimental mission to Germany tonight on the heels of his announcement that he will not seek the Democratic senatorial nomination in New York.

Kennedy's brief statement Tuesday on the Senate race shed no further light on his future. But it left open the door to any invitation from President Johnson to join him as vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket.

Thus ended long weeks of speculation whether Kennedy would accede to the urgings of New York friends and Democratic leaders, move to the Empire State and seek the nomination to run against Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating.

"I deeply appreciate the loyalty and friendship of those who have urged me to run and who believe I could perform a service for the people of New York," Kennedy said in a statement handed out at the Justice Department.

"However, in fairness to them and to end speculation, I wish to state that I will not be a candidate for United States senator from New York," he said.

Keating, in a statement issued in New York, said "I have no particular comment. Frankly, I have been so busy with my work that I have had no chance to give any thought to a campaign or a possible opponent."

William H. McKeon, New York State Democratic chairman, said Kennedy's announcement will undoubtedly help the thinking of some Democrats throughout New York. We hope to achieve a consensus on a candidate as soon as feasible."

There was little elaboration on Kennedy's statement from the Justice Department. But two key facors emerged as most influential.

One is the civil rights picture. Final passage of the rights bill, with all of its enforcement problems, is imminent. The beginnings of the "long, hot summer" in race relations already are evident. The attorney general is the nation's top civil rights strategist. He has committed himself to staying on the job through Johnson's present term. And his hands will be full of civil rights chores.

The second factor is his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., whose back was broken in a plane crash last week.

Tuesday's decision threw into sharper focus Robert Kennedy's role as head of the Kennedy family since the assassination last November of his brother, President John F. Kennedy. His injured younger brother — up for re-election this fall — will add to the demands on Robert Kennedy's time. And to run in New York, he feels, would require an immediate campaign.

The attorney general will speak this Friday on the first anniversary of John F. Kennedy's stirring speech to Berliners, when he proclaimed himself one of them in spirit. Robert Kennedy will speak from the identical spot in the John F. Kennedy Square in West Berlin.

From Germany he will travel to Poland, next to London, before returning during the first week in July.

BONN, Germany (AP)—Communist China and West Germany are exchanging newsmen.

A government spokesman announced that the two governments concluded an agreement Monday provided for the New China News Agency to open an office in Bonn and for DPA, the West Germany news agency, to open an office in Peking.
